NAZIS RESUME DAYLIGHT RAIDS

9,396 Registered, Draft Boards at Work

ASSIGN SERIAL NUMBERS FOR DRAFTEES HERE

60 COUNTIES REPORT

With 9,396 men between the ages of 21 and 35 registered yesterday in the selective service lists in Richland county, members of the three draft boards went into action today and prepared to assign serial numbers for registrants by Oct. 21

Reports from 60 counties in Ohio showed that 695,625 have been registered in the state. Reports from 28 other counties were to be filed later in the day. Washington dispatches estimated that 16,404 000 were registered in the nation

Walter Underwood, deputy clerk of the election board which handled the registrations, said precinct registrars functioned smoothly. All had sufficient supplies.

Some precincts experienced a late hour rush in the evening. At Madison high school where township registrations were handled, registrars experienced a heavy rush in the evening.

All of the county's 92 precincts reported their totals to the election board last night with the exception of one This report was brought to the board this morning.

The three five-man Richland county draft boards, together with one clerk for each board, assembled in the court of appeals room in the courthouse today and were sworn in by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston

Their first duty, a spokesman said, would be to sort out the cards of registrants who do not belong to this area. Men could register anywhere in the United States and there were a number of out-of-town and out-of-state men who registered here yesterday.

These cards will be mailed to the proper areas. Sometime today the three boards expected to go to their various headquarters and start work on the cards from their areas.

Chinese residents of San Francisco, eligible for draft, also register in nation-wide selective service registration.

LOADED TRUCKS READY TO ROLL ON BURMA ROAD

(By United Press)

LASHIO, ON THE BURMA ROAD—Five thousand sweating, singing coolies loaded the 2,000 dark gray American trucks today which start a flow of supplies along China's life line of supply at midnight (12:30 p. m. EST) when Great Britain, defying Japanese anger, reopens the Burma road.

Streams of coolies, Chinese, Burmese, Thailanders, plodded under the blazing sun between warehouses and open air dumps and the long lines of trucks with 100,000 tons of goods accumulated during the three months Britain kept the road closed at Japan's demand.

Chinese crews had fueled the trucks and were ready for the zero hour, prepared to brave threatened Japanese bombing plane attacks all along the Chinese part of the road. A ferocious bombing by Japanese planes based in French Indo-China was taken for granted.

Chinese authorities across the Burma frontier announced that they had taken adequate and forceful measures to protect the entire highway, extending from Burma into China's southwestern province of Yunnan, against bombing raids.

"The trucks must go on," a government spokesman said.

Willkie Hits New Deal Promise of Idleness

Says America Must Choose Between Jobs Offered By GOP and Unemployment Under Present Administration.

By THEODORE KOOP

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN, EN ROUTE TO ST. LOUIS —(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie charged today that the New Deal had made a "frank and shameless promise" of more unemployment and added that "our promise is more jobs."

"America must choose between these two promises," the Republican presidential nominee said in a speech prepared for a rally at Evansville, Ind

"The young people of America must choose between a party that promises them a career on the relief rolls and a party that promises them jobs."

His statements were made as he started a heavy day of campaigning in Indiana Illinois and Missouri following a speech at Cincinnati last night on his relief views. Arguing that the New Deal had helped create a "slavery of idleness," he advocated five changes in the WPA program:

1. Greater emphasis on public works projects under private contractors.

2. Placing war personnel on the merit system, and allocating relief funds to the states in accordance with the amount of unemployment.

3 Treating men and women on work relief "not as a class apart, but as employes of the government."

4. Inviting labor and other

MARION PUTS ON WILLKIE SHOW

Mansfield's Party Was Big Success But Nearby City Did a Bigger Job.

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

Mansfield's party for Wendell L. Willkie, Republican standard bearer, was a success yesterday, but the one Marion staged just an hour later was bigger and far more colorful.

Marion was re-living the days of 20 years ago when one of its sons, Warren G. Harding, was receiving the kind of reception that only the home-town can give a president

Willkie paid tribute to Marion as the home of former President Harding, and a cheer went up from the crowd as the G. O. P. nominee referred to the president from 1920 to 1923 whose body rests in a tomb in Marion.

When the Willkie special backed onto a siding in the downtown area at 11:20 a. m., more than 10.000 persons roared a welcome.

Two bands played patriotic tunes, big banners shot up out of the crowd like mushrooms after a shower, red, white, and blue bunting waved from buildings and

CITY GETS SET TO INSTALL 350 PARKING METERS

Contract Signed, Mansfield To Have 12-Minute To One-Hour Service.

Within a few weeks, Mansfield motorists, who have been hearing and reading about metered downtown parking for more than a year, will have an opportunity to slip their nickels and pennies into the slotted devices.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton yesterday signed a contract with the Michaels Art Bronze company, Covington, Ky., for leasing 350 of the manually operated machines for a nine-month period, the contract calling for an option to purchase them at the end of that period.

The machines will be combination type, permitting one hour parking for a nickel and 12 minutes to 48 minutes parking for from one to four pennies.

The city will pay a rental of $3.75 a month per meter. The contract stipulates that the $33.75 rental paid on each meter in nine months may be applied to the $49.50 cost of each meter. Total cost of the meters will be $18,750.50.

It is estimated that the 350 meters will produce daily revenue of approximately $150. The money may be turned into the general fund of the city or set up to create a fund of $6,284.25 needed to purchase the meters at the end of the nine-month trial period.

German Fliers Strike Across Kent Coastline

Most Invaders Turned Back By Alert British Defense; Few Manage to Slip Through, Threatening London Once More.

BULLETIN

LONDON—German warplanes, which all day had beaten at England in formations of hundreds, returned early tonight to London for their 41st consecutive nightly assault. Five times during the day the sirens had sounded and, while most of the raiders had been turned back before reaching the city, some bombs dropped and there were civilian casualties.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Formations of hundreds of warplanes attacked England today as the Germans switched back to the mass daylight style of raid against London and other areas.

Most of the German fighter-bombers were forced back by anti-aircraft fire and British planes, but some managed to penetrate the London defenses and dropped bombs in the capital area.

The raids started early in the morning when 20 planes crossed the coast near the Thames estuary and tried to force their way toward London.

They were quickly repulsed. But a few minutes later a group of more than 100 appeared and some of these bombed the London area.

Then an even larger formation crossed the Kent coast, flying high above the clouds. It split into waves, some of which took the favored western route inland and circled towards the capital.

Only a short time later the sirens in the London area shrilled out for the fourth time since dawn, as Germans tried to beat off the Hurricane and Spitfire squadrons patrolling the coast. Some of them slipped past the British guard and approached close enough to put the London area in a state of alert.

Before this reversal to mass tactics the Nazis had been using planes singly or in very small formations.

The first of the morning's alerts, which followed one of the quietest nights London has had since early September, ended quickly without any sound of aerial activity, but was followed soon after by another alarm, which also ended in a short time.

Formations of planes could be heard flying overhead during the second alarm and in several sections of London the "urgent danger" signal was sounded by the whistles of the air raid wardens.

A strong force of German planes was reported crossing into England over the Kent coast during the second alarm.

A cold October rain seriously hampered the operations of Nazi airmen during the night, serving to give the rubble-strewn metropolis some hours of relative peace.

Only a few raiders succeeded in piercing the curtain of rain and shrapnel which protected the city, and the others, turning away, poured bombs on the surrounding countryside, which suffered considerably.

Two hospitals were hit in the

MORE RUSSIAN TROOPS MARCH

Over 300,000 Massed Near German Garrisons on Rumanian Border.

(By International News Service)

BUDAPEST—Soviet Russia has massed between 300.000 and 360,000 troops opposite new German garrisons on the Rumanian frontier and the main body of the Soviet Black sea fleet has sailed from Odessa toward the southeast, according to reports reaching Budapest today.

The fleet was reported en route to Russia's Batum oil fields while concentrations of Red army troops in Bessarabia and Bukovina bordering Rumania were said to involve 20 divisions.

A Soviet war-time division is estimated between 15.000 and 18,000 men.

Captains of Greek ships returning to Piraeus reported that they had met large numbers of Russian warships patrolling the waters off the Rumanian coast.

Amid the increased Russian activity, Balkan diplomatic circles claimed Turkey is making efforts to achieve closer co-operation with Russia. Some quarters predicted an agreement under which Russia would offer a protective pact to Turkey.

(Editor's note: Russo-Turkish relations were the subject of a series of conflicting reports. A Reuters dispatch from Istanbul quoted competent circles there as denying that Turkey and Russia are negotiating a mutual assistance pact.

(But the London Daily Express said George Rendel, British minister to Bulgaria, was en route to

BUY SENIOR HIGH BAND UNIFORMS

Members of Mansfield Senior high school band, clad in brand new uniforms, will go marching down Stadium field in real military style when the Tygers tangle with Massillon high in a football game here Oct. 25.

According to a description of the new uniforms issued today by officials of the Band Mothers club, which has campaigned for funds to purchase the new uniforms, emphasis in the cut of the uniforms will be strictly on the military style.

Colors stressed in the new suits will be red, blue, gold, and white, with blue and red predominating. The coats will be cherry red, trimmed in blue and gold braid, and the trousers will be royal blue with red and gold trimming.

The caps will be in the high school style and blue and white, trimmed in red and gold. A white pompon will decorate the top of the cap.

On the left shoulder of each uniform will be a gold citation cord, with a Tyger emblem. White gloves and spats will be ordered later when more money is raised, officials of the club announced.

Johnson Says Two Years Will See U. S. Well-Armed.

NEW YORK —(AP)— The United States can do in two years the job of arming that Germany did in seven, says Louis Johnson, former assistant secretary of war, and this can be done "because it was planned for and developed."

In a nation-wide broadcast last night in reply to an earlier radio address by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Johnson charged the famous aviator with "ignorance of the United States, of its state of preparedness, and most of all, of its iron will."

Johnson called Lindbergh's address a plea to "sacrifice the principles on which the United States was built," to "appease Germany and Japan" and to "stop helping Britain."

ESPIONAGE

Filipino Graduate of West Point Arrested.

MANILA, P. I.—(INS)—Captain Rufo C. Romero, Filipino who graduated seventeenth in his 1931 class at West Point, was arrested today with two other men for questioning in connection with an espionage plot against United States military defenses in the Philippines.

Army officials issued an official statement tonight that Captain Romero had been arrested. Army authorities reported they found photographs of several confidential documents in a basement workroom in Romero's house.

The documents had been obtained from headquarters of the 14th engineers to which Captain Romero was assigned.

EVACUATION

BUCHAREST, Rumania—(AP) Preparations to house 200,000 children now being removed from Berlin, Hamburg and other large German centers are being made in the Benat region of western Rumania, it was reported authoritatively today.

The plan follows upon a Berlin announcement, widely publicized in the Rumanian press, that German women and children are to be removed to "avoid imperiling their health."

DISAPPEARS

Orrville Man Missing on Trip to Visit Fiancee.

ORRVILLE—(U.P.)—The mysterious disappearance of William Immel, 31-year-old gasoline station attendant en route to visit his fiancee, puzzled authorities today.

Immel left home Tuesday night to see Miss Ann Geiser, six miles northeast of Orrville, but he never reached the Geiser home. The couple was to have obtained a license yesterday for their marriage Sunday.

Immel's automobile was found wrecked two miles from Miss Geiser's home. A posse of nearly 100 persons searched fields and woods in a radius of four miles from the spot where the car was found.

FIRE AT PEN

Small Blaze Believed Caused By Defective Wiring.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio penitentiary guards extinguished a small blaze that broke out early today in a second floor honor dormitory of the 100-year-old prison.

The fire was believed caused by defective electrical wiring. New wiring is being installed throughout the prison and other fire hazards are being eliminated as fast as possible under an emergency appropriation.

Stocksdale maintained a denial of his identity and knowledge of the slaying. Fostoria police reported his father said he had been acting queerly and had been examined by a Toledo nerve specialist.

Donald Wagler, 19, a farm hand, was indicted by the same grand jury for murder in the fatal beating of his employer, Roy E. Schafer, 37.

Finds 120 In Willkie's 'Campaign Family' Travel In 'Hotel on Wheels' With Barber and Everything

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

That 16-car Willkie special that brought the Republican presidential candidate to Mansfield yesterday is a combined hotel on wheels, newspaper office, barber shop, doctor's office and just about everything else that makes up the average American's life.

Nearly 120 people have lived on that train for a month and they will stay right there until the week before election. They make up Wendell L. Willkie's "official family" of campaign managers, newsmen, photographers and an array of notables that changes at every state line.

Of course, the G. O. P. nominee, Mrs. Willkie, and usually his brother, Ed, ride on it too. They ride in the last car. Willkie relaxes there between speeches, composes a speech for the next town, and then steps out onto the rear platform to greet his audiences.

The Willkie special has traveled well over 10,000 miles in 30 states, and before election it will have covered more than 20,000 miles in at least 35 of the 48 states.

The train travels on a leisurely schedule so it won't arrive late at scheduled stops. Members of the candidate's staff had to tell the crew yesterday to slacken the speed so the train wouldn't reach Marion ahead of schedule.

It's an all-pullman train and everyone except the candidate and his immediate staff pays to ride on it. Even Gov. John W. Bricker, of Ohio, who boarded the train at Mansfield yesterday, had to reach down in his pocket for the fare to Cincinnati.

Train Has Already Been Over 10,000 Miles In 30 States.

A staff of approximately 60 newspaper men, representing the three major news services, Associated Press, United Press and International News Service, Hearst and Paramount newsreel photographers, and a number of special correspondents from the nation's larger papers travel on the train to keep the world informed about the G. O. P. candidate's speeches and the progress of his campaign

Reds Say German Aerial Offensive On Britain Fails

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—Red Star, official organ of the Soviet army, said today that Germany's air offensive against Britain has failed.

The Red Army organ said that not only were the British able to continue to defend themselves but were able "effectively" to carry the battle to Germany.

"In spite of its experience with surprise attacks on enemy air fields the German air force has been unable to repeat this experience in England," Red Star said.

"The battle shows that neither side has been able to achieve mastery of the air. Both sides are carrying on active operations. British aviation is even extending the radius of its action.

"British bombers have been extremely effective in the channel ports and in continuing attacks on the German rear and Berlin. . . . The uninterrupted bombing of London has resulted in the tremendous destruction of houses, fuel dumps, power stations and transport.

"But the defensive capacity of this giant city remains great enabling it to continue industrial and civil activity."

FINISH WORK ON ROAD JOBS

WPA Completes Resurfacing of County Primary Roads at Cost of $70,000.

Work will be completed today on a $70,000 WPA primary road resurfacing project in Richland county which has been in progress since early in the summer, County Engineer Howard Sword said.

Approximately 25 miles of roads in all sections of the county were included in the project. Bituminous material was used on the roads. The finishing touches were being applied today to the Bowman Street road north of the city.

The county contributed about $10,000 to the cost of the work, while federal funds financed the remainder.

The engineer said the county's resurfacing program for the year will be completed in two weeks if the weather is favorable. In addition to the WPA project, the county has used its own funds for resurfacing and repairing sections of roads during the summer and early fall. The work is all done except for a short section in Worthington township, Sword said.

Complete Plans For Methodist Booth Festival

At a meeting of the Richland county board of the Epworth leagues of the Methodist churches, plans were completed for the annual Richland county Booth festival to be held at Central Methodist church Tuesday, Nov. 5 with six churches participating.

The festival will open at 8 p. m. with each participating church in charge of a booth. Proceeds will be given to the Methodist Children's home in Berea.

Arrangements have been made to present a program, following the exhibitions. Rev. Avery Butler of Butler will give a talk, and Wade Pittinger of Mansfield and Lucile Fox of Ontario will be in charge of the devotions. Refreshments are in charge of Miss Alma Jean Irvine, of Mansfield.

Children from the Berea home will also furnish entertainment during the social hour. Participating churches include First and Central of Mansfield; Pavonia-Franklin - Adaro - Olivesburg charge; Bellville - Butler - Liberty charge; Ontario and Shelby.

MARION PUTS ON WILLKIE SHOW

Motor traffic in the city's business section was at a standstill for more than two hours while the huge crowd thronged every main thoroughfare. Willkie's train stopped behind a school building, so the pupils in that one school at least got a long noon recess, for there was no use trying to conduct classes with all the din outside.

Vendors struggled through the crowd, hawking their wares. Willkie buttons, pennants, and windshield stickers blossomed everywhere. It seemed that every second person wore a Willkie button of some sort.

Columbus, only 45 miles southeast of Marion, sent a delegation estimated at 1,000 to swell the crowd. They waved banners saying: "Columbus and Franklin County Want Willkie."

The Delaware county delegation, not to be outdone, displayed banners which read: "Delaware County, Another For Willkie."

In restaurants and stores during the noon hour and for most of the afternoon virtually everybody talked about Willkie. Long after the special train pulled out of town for Springfield, the din of the crowd echoed in the downtown section.

Introduced by Congressman Frederick C. Smith of the Eighth district, Willkie called for a "united social, and industrial, and economic front so strong that no puny dictator will ever want to attack us."

"Let's away with this theory of defeatism—this talk about exhausting our natural resources and running up against a wall in business and industry," he urged. "We haven't even touched the borders of the development of business and industry.

"Become soldiers in this battle to preserve and build America. Join me in this program to revitalize our domestic economy so we will become impregnable to any attack and so we won't become involved in any war," Willkie pleaded.

"This campaign is the most fateful in the history of our nation. On its outcome may depend the future of our democracy," he asserted.

He repeated the pledge made earlier in Mansfield to "preserve for labor every social gain it has made and more too. No man will ever fight harder for that objective than Wendell Willkie, "he added.

He hit at President Roosevelt's "non-political" defense inspection trip, asserting that "that is playing politics with yours and my security.

"I make no bones about being a candidate for president," he said, "and I think it's the duty of every candidate to discuss the issues of the campaign with the people."

During his talk frequent cries of "You Tell 'em, Willkie" and "There are no eggs in this crowd" came from his listeners. He acknowledged all of them with wave of his arm and a broad grin.

One man yelled, "I want to be a captain," apparently referring to Elliott Roosevelt's post in the army.

Willkie came right back with, "You don't belong to the right family."

Mrs. Willkie appeared on the train platform with her husband and received a big ovation. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. In Mansfield it was chrysanthemums. She watched Willkie intently until he had finished his talk and then joined him in shaking hands with people closest to the train.

Gov. John W. Bricker, Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland and Congressman-at-large George Bender and L. L. Marshall were introduced.

The Marion stop was the second scheduled stop in Ohio yesterday, but a crowd estimated at nearly 1,000 watched the train pass through Galion and small clusters of spectators watched from every crossroads town along the way.

PEANUTS HELP

STATE COLLEGE, Miss.—(NS)—Sam Coggins, freshman from Nettleton, Miss., brought a big bag to the cashier's office to pay off his tuition. When the cashier opened it, 2,400 shiny 1910 nickels spilled out. Coggins had earned them selling peanuts at five cents a pack.

PUPILS FROM 11 STATES ON SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL ROLLS

A check-up at Mansfield Senior high school this week revealed that pupils from 11 states excluding Ohio had enrolled there since September.

The pupil coming from the state farthest from Ohio is Lucille Bridges, who attended school last year at Colorado Springs, Colo.

10 A's—Faith Saurin, Chicago, Ill.

DOWN WITH THE WASH

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif.—(AP)—This is an art colony and every once in a while something reminds you of it. Latest is a complaint against the unesthetic effect of washing hung out on clotheslines, right where everybody can see it.

GET ADVANCE

Mansfield Schools Granted $64,000 In Tax Revenue.

Mansfield schools were granted a $64,000 tax advance today by County Treasurer John Kolb, making a total of $144,000 the city schools have received in advance of the regular last-half settlement.

Kolb said the regular settlement probably will be made about Nov. 10. At that time the county and all its subdivisions will share in the distribution of more than $500,000.

Mansfield schools will receive only a small allotment then, however, since virtually everything due them has been allocated in advance, the treasurer said.

Total advances so far amount to $151,500. In addition to the funds allocated to the Mansfield schools, the Sharon township schools have received $4,000 and the Union Rural schools, $3,500.

FINDS WILLKIE, AIDS TRAVEL IN 'TRAIN HOTEL'

The newsmen have set up their own private offices in the pullman coaches, pounding out their copy between speeches and handing it to telegraph messenger boys who are on hand at every stop to meet the train. The boys carry the reporters' stories to local telegraph offices where they are sent all over the world where major services are available.

Since most of Willkie's rear platform speeches are extemporaneous, he can issue no "advance copy" on them to the reporters. Girls on the train, who are regular members of the campaign staff, take his talks in shorthand and recordings are made of all the speeches. Between towns, the records and shorthand figures are translated into mimeographed stories which are turned over to the reporters to use as they please.

In the case of major speeches, however, copies are prepared in advance, and the reporters can have their stories written and ready to release as soon as the talk is over.

Willkie has a long day, getting up about 6 a. m. and working until 11 or 12 at night. In the early morning hours, before he begins his daily back platform appearances, he works on his speeches and goes back to his writing again at night if he has no major engagements. He makes no Sunday talks.

David S. Ingalls of Cleveland, his Ohio campaign manager, estimated he makes an average of ten speeches a day and will have made at least 300 by the end of the campaign.

Ingalls, who was the Republican candidate for governor of Ohio several years ago, has been a close friend of Willkie's for a number of years.

Asked yesterday how he is holding up under the strain of travel and speech-making, Willkie said "Great." A doctor goes along on the train to treat the candidate and any staff member who needs medical care.

Willkie's associates said his voice, which caused him serious trouble early in the campaign, is much better now. It is so husky that it is almost gruff. But his smile and his manner make his listeners forget the gruffness.

Mrs. Willkie's time is her own, except when the train stops for a major engagement. Then she goes with her husband and meets women's organizations, but she makes no speeches. She always tries to appear with her husband during his back platform talks.

"Mr. Willkie likes people so well that he wears himself out meeting them," a member of his staff said yesterday. He explained that the big, good-natured candidate will go without meals and sleep so he can talk with the thousands he meets along the route.

The candidate will spend as much time with a steel worker and a miner as with a big business man, for he worked in factories himself on the way up and he knows and likes the people there.

Immediately after his talk in Mansfield yesterday, Willkie retired to his coach and remained there until the train was almost to Marion. Then he came out to meet the guests who had boarded the train in Kent and Mansfield.

He gave each of them a vigorous handshake and a husky "Hello" and "How are you?" He stopped to talk when anyone had something to ask. He wore a gray business suit, and his shock of brown hair was slightly rumpled on top.

Coming through from New York were Senator Henry C. Lodge, jr., the tall, youthful and smiling son of the famous senator of the same name, and John D. M. Hamilton, former national G. O. P. chairman.

At Kent, Congressman George Bender and L. L. Marshall of Cleveland, and Mrs. Katherine Kennedy Brown, national committeewoman from Ohio, boarded the special.

In Mansfield, Gov. Bricker, Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland, candidate for U. S. senator; Ed D. Schorr; state G. O. P. chairman, and others high in Republican politics in Ohio joined the group.

Everyone on the train has high regard for Willkie and he treats them all as members of his family.

Two Eggs Tossed At Willkie, Miss

EVANSVILLE, Ind.—(U.P.)—Two eggs were hurled at Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell L. Willkie as he drove down lines of applauding thousands on Evansville's main street today. Both missed.

STOCK TRADERS EXPERIMENT IN MARKET TODAY

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—After two days of rising markets, stock traders experimented with price levels today.

Among firmer issues were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Harvester, American Smelting and Johns-Manville. More backward were Sears Roebuck, Eastman, Anaconda, American Telephone and Texas Corp.

Bonds and commodities were irregular. The London market was fairly firm.

Little public participation in trading was evident and professionals merely acted to solidify their positions.

Of prime interest to investors was the three point rise for September in the federal reserve board's production index figure at 125 and the indication that the upswing would continue.

Increased aircraft manufacturing operations were foreshadowed by the government's first contracts to pay for aviation plant expansions.

Predictions of a shortage of machine tools for peacetime industry were met by forecasts that the automobile industry was unlikely to make extensive model changes through the next two years.

TWO INJURED

Mansfield Workmen Hurt In Accidents at Plants.

Two men were treated in General hospital yesterday for injuries received in industrial accidents at the Westinghouse plant and at the Taylor Metal products company.

Most seriously injured was Eddie Wimler, 26, 54 North Adams street, who suffered severe lacerations of both feet while working on a conveyor at Westinghouse. Hospital officials described his condition today as "fairly good."

MORE RUSSIAN TROOPS MARCH

Turkey to confer with British Ambassador Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Huggessen on Bulgaria's position regarding closer Soviet-Turkish relations.

(Bulgarian Communist sources also were said to have predicted that Turkish President Ismet Inonu would soon announce a Russo-Turkish military alliance.)

Up-to-date Russian motorized units were included in the concentrations along the Rumanian border, together with squads of tanks, it was reported, and long-range artillery batteries were massed around the Danube port of Reni.

In addition, Soviet forces were said to have been placed in positions facing the Danube river delta in territory recently ceded to Russia by Rumania. Hundreds of Rusian planes were reported in these areas.

Advices to Budapest said still other Russian divisions were concentrated in the Crimean peninsula, directly across from Turkey's northern coast. Foreign ships were barred temporarily from Russian Black sea ports.

Through her minister in Bucharest, Turkey was reported to have informed the Soviet envoy and the United States Minister, Franklin Mott Gunther, that Turkey insists on maintenance of Greece's integrity.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—When you look at Rosalind Russell on the screen today, take a chuckle; once upon a time Hollywood had her catalogued as a "cold" personality.

"Cold"—this lively, brilliant, amusing and genuine young woman who undoubtedly is the town's No. 1 comedienne, with extra-high dramatic voltage in reserve and scarcely tapped as yet.

Roz says, "How would they be able to judge that I was cold? Why, until this picture I've never had a real love scene! There've been plenty of romantic sequences—yes, you could call them 'love scenes by indirection,' but there's been none of the real thing."

The new picture is "This Thing Called Love," and the gent for whom Roz will turn on her first movie heat is Melvyn Douglas. It's her fourth light comedy role since "The Women" lifted her from the rut of drab and colorless jobs that previously had befallen her.

"That's one of the things about Hollywood," she says. "You aren't the type until you've proved you are. I had to fight for that part in 'The Women.' But I wouldn't change Hollywood—it's more fun when you have to fight for what you want."

* * *

The Russell girl came to Hollywood with a stage background which included drama, farce, comedy, all phases of theater. She fell into second leads almost immediately—the sort of stilted society roles she tabs as the "Who's for tennis?" or "Jack looks peaked today" variety.

This was broken by her assignment to "Craig's Wife," a thankless role she screamed and kicked against—but played so impressively that critics huzzahed and fans despised her.

Then came her "tweedy" era—epitomized by her assignment to "The Citadel." ("It was a Helen Hayes role, and I'm no more a Helen Hayes than you are.") There was "Night Must Fall," very, very tweedy, and assorted other roles in which the Russell verve was repressed.

"Nobody could think of me for comedy," she says, "and I couldn't see why because I've always been able to tell a funny story—well, a couple anyway—and get a laugh. I've always had a lot of fun myself. When I heard about 'The Women' I asked Hunt Stromberg for the part. He sent me to Mr. (George) Cukor, who had already picked out a New York actress for the part. He said I couldn't play it: I was too pretty. And I said nobody had ever accused me of being pretty before and asked if he'd ever seen a clown without his make-up? . . . Well, he agreed to make a test, and I played that woman five different ways, and afterward he said he was convinced, the part was mine."

CHAPTER XIV

Norma began to speak steadily, in a sort of drone.

"I won't be spied upon, and reported, and talked to," she said. "I don't do anything anyone else doesn't do, and I've not three heads, and there's no use people following me around and making out that everything I do is monstrous! I'm perfectly able to manage my own affairs if I am only sixteen; I'll be seventeen in about another month, and when I'm eighteen I'm of age! If people are nice to me I'll be nice to them, but if my father thinks for one second of an instant . . ."

"Why, she is a mere infant!" Jocelyn thought, watching her part and fluff her hair, and pouts as she surrendered it to the ministrations of Mattress, who at that moment came into the room.

"Norma, if you had a daughter of sixteen—" Jocelyn began patiently.

"Which I haven't!" Norma snapped, seeming to feel this a rather apt reply

"Which you haven't. But if you had, and she was—well, pretty and was somebody probably to be very rich, would you let her go about alone to parties and restaurants and dances?"

"Certainly, if I trusted her and if she wasn't a fool, and I'm going to tell my father so!" Norma answered warmly

"You wouldn't feel that she might get herself into difficulties, find herself in awkward situations?"

"I think people like my father and grandmother and, well, like you too" Norma said calmly, "have filthy minds! What do they think we're all doing all the time? I should hope we had sense enough to keep ourselves out of trouble!"

"But Norma, girls don't. You were talking today of the little Patterson girl who was driving on the Skyline——"

"But that just meant she didn't know how to drive; it didn't mean she wasn't behaving herself!" Norma said, and as she was a creature of brief and changing moods, and as she had pretty well talked herself out of her ill temper, when Jocelyn laughed, she laughed too, reluctantly, and they went downstairs to dinner with no further words

The dinner party consisted of the bridge foursome, two college boys who had come over to pay their respects to Norma, and who were so shy and inarticulate that they needed a great deal of encouragement, and the pretty, talkative girl who had brought them along. Covers had been accordingly laid for nine, and Jocelyn found herself facing her first formal dinner quite composedly, settled as she was among the young people and not obliged to speak during the entire meal if she felt so disposed. But glib as the girls were, and politely responsive as were the boys, they did need some help, and Jocelyn was presently guiding the conversation with all the skill at her command, and was rewarded by more than one flash from the group, and by a sudden description of a submarine's machinery by young Buddy Taylor that amazed them all.

She noted that only one of the boys took a cocktail: the pretty girl, Janey Trent, observing that it gave Mama fits if she did Philip had been in the group when they came downstairs, looking handsome, Jocelyn thought, in his dinner jacket; he smiled at her once or twice absently as he talked to the other women during the dinner; he did not once address her directly. She was glad to be more or less ignored because the glitter and elegance of the whole scene was rather breathtaking to her.

* * *

Jocelyn wondered what her little group would want to do after dinner, but they left her no doubt. They played a wild game of bridge; they turned on the radio and danced; they finally subsided in a sort of heap upon a particularly deep and soft davenport, discussing their costumes for the Brice party and advising Norma as to her own.

It was at this time that Lorenz appeared to say to Jocelyn that Mr. Fordyce would like to speak to her, and she went into the adjoining room. Phil was standing, he said smilingly that he would only detain her for a moment.

"I happen to be dummy," he said, "I just put my mother down eight hundred, and of course she's in a frenzy. She all but accused me of cheating. Tell me, how goes it?"

"It goes well." Jocelyn smiled gallantly, but there was a certain subtle significance in her smile "At moments she likes me, and at moments she's going to tell you all about me," she said. "But on the whole, as an alternative to Miss Sanderson or boarding school, I think we'll manage."

"What d'you think of her? Of course she's spoiled."

He wanted her to contradict this But instead she nodded "It couldn't be helped, I suppose But she's fine, too. I'm—I'm liking this"

"Not sorry you tried it?"

"No"

"I was afraid—you see, I hardly know her. I've had her on the train three days, but I'd not really seen her before that for years. I was a little afraid, from the way she talked, that she didn't quite know the difference between a—well, a companion and a lady's maid."

"She doesn't," Jocelyn answered seriously. He looked at her quickly.

"Want me to speak to her?"

"No" she said thoughtfully, unhesitantly.

* * *

For a minute they looked at each other, and then the man laughed

"Philip, you crook!" called his mother's voice from a nearby room "We're waiting for you, it's your deal!"

"Good luck!" Philip said There were a dozen questions in Jocelyn's mind: questions about cocktails, about overnight visits to other girls, about hotel dancing, but she perceived even now that she would have to answer them herself. Norma's father knew as little of the situation, was as unprepared to solve her problems as she was herself.

She presently joined the sleepy group before the fire in the dimly lighted room adjoining, which had the effect of breaking it up. The visitors drowsily departed, and she and Norma went upstairs. Mattress and another maid were in Norma's suite. Jocelyn turned her over to them with a deep inward sigh of relief. She felt completely exhausted.

Lying in bed, reviewing the incredible panorama of the day's events, she felt completely unequal to the inevitable demands of the days to come. If this was Norma's first day, the moment of her arrival, what would the next one be, and the next, and the next? Apparently the girl expected to be, and was accustomed to being, amused every minute She must be putting on new frocks, driving dancing, eating, drinking, talking for fourteen hours out of the twenty-four, and Jocelyn was the person upon whom would fall the responsibility of seeing that all this went on safely and sanely.

She knew that she would be bored by Norma, ignored, snubbed, shocked; she knew that her hold here was precarious, that it might be loosened any instant. But the scene was so brilliant, so new, that Jocelyn, snuggling deep into fluffy blankets sinking off at last into wearied sleep, knew that she would keep herself in the picture if she could.

Just as sleep claimed her, she started back into a moment's consciousness Kent! Kent! She had not thought of him for hours And in that fact alone lay ample reason for her remaining at Hill Acres It was such a relief to forget him, to return to the thought of him rested and fresh! He was out of her life now and no harm done No harm done She had run away from the harm of that night in Piedmont.

The burning consideration of what she was to wear to the Brice party was absorbing Norma when Jocelyn went into her room at ten o'clock the next morning they discussed it thoroughly, and took up the discussion afresh when Janey Trent came in There was the Parker's baby party on the second, too.

Any simple ideas that Jocelyn might have had of Watteau costumes or coroneted Queen Elizabeths were dashed when the girls explained their own views of the subject. Jane Trent was going as a baby smiling in the basket shouldered by a peasant mother. Jane's legs would do the walking, the upper part of a bowed female figure in gay rags would be fastened in front of her, and her own head and arms would protrude from the basket supported on the dummy's shoulders. The man who was taking Jane was going as a notorious criminal whose name had lately appropriated the headlines, he would not only wear prison stripes, but have a shaved head, a face painted yellow, a revolver from which blank shots would occasionally be fired to enliven the proceedings, and a string of filthy cans hanging from his belt, from which he would occasionally offer his dance partners cuts of dry bread, canned beans, shoveled forth on a strip of shingle, and cigarette stubs. "We must save all our stubs for him!" the girls said enthusiastically.

These details drove the girls into ecstacies, but still the question of Norma's costume remained unsettled Charles van der Lipp, it seemed, was escorting Norma Norma nearly seventeen, seemed young to Jocelyn to be included in this party at all, but it was becoming increasingly evident to her that the heiress to the great industry of the Lockey motorcars was subject to few of the rules that restrained other girls.

"Darling," said Norma to her chaperon patiently, "I went to a party as Carmen when I was three. I remember Gran gluing a little cigarette to the corner of my mouth."

It was by this time almost decided that Norma should go as a fish bowl with real fish swimming in it. Jocelyn would have been incapable of imagining such a thing, much less would she have known where or how to find it. But once again the power of unlimited money was evinced, when she telephoned the San Francisco costumer, there was instant reaction to the name of Fordyce, and it was promised that the very best that Lewis could manage should be sent down for inspection the following morning.

* * *

Norma was now in a state Jocelyn particularly disliked -- a smug, elated mood that said that Norma Fordyce was smarter and more ingenious than anyone else, and had been more places and seen more of life, and that she could show these backwoodsy Peninsula people a good many things that would surprise them. She was laughing a great deal, often finishing her laugh with tears in her eyes; she was getting noisy, and the addition of two strange boys to the party, when they all went downstairs for a one-o'clock luncheon, did nothing to quiet Jocelyn's uneasiness or improve Norma's manners. Her hilarity rose to shrieks, she grew silly; she extended affectionate overtures to the boys, and accepted their familiarities in return. Ponny, who was an enormous fellow caught the small girl up by the hands and swung her around in a circle until she and her clothes were a whirling blur, and it was Black, the rougher and noiser of the two, who finally caught her, held her to steady her on her feet, and smoothed down her disordered clothing with a remark or two that Jocelyn felt in very bad taste, to put it mildly.

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause That way you don't have to endure it first and try to "cure" it afterward—you can avoid having it.

Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this is what you lack try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need Eat All-Bran often drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars" Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1940.

Then, too, there's the studious fellow who wishes this war was over so he could get caught up on his reading.

Simile: As optimistic as the theater patron who plans to make a down payment out of this week's bank night award.

Willkie Given Attentive Hearing

NOT since the days of William Jennings Bryan and Theodore Roosevelt have the people of Mansfield and Richland county accorded such an ovation to a presidential candidate as that of yesterday, on the occasion of Wendell Willkie's visit here.

And that it was a friendly, well-behaved crowd of thousands of attentive listeners reflects credit on this community and the caliber of its citizenship.

It can by no means be assumed that all who gathered to see and hear Mr. Willkie will vote for him, yet all extended him the courtesy of a respectful hearing and evidenced interest in what he said.

Localizing his short talk to recognition of Richland county's balanced agricultural and industrial interests, Mr. Willkie centered attention on these two subjects and argued the widespread benefits of expanding production in preference to an economy of scarcity.

Whatever differences of opinion may exist as to methods of accomplishment, there will be no quarrel with Mr. Willkie's idea that "the prosperity of a democracy can be developed only by producing more and better things at decreasing prices and ever higher standards for the farmer and the worker," or to differ with his expressed ambition to develop a country in which "every youth has a hope in life."

The coming of Mr. Willkie to Mansfield served the purpose of bringing a feeling of better acquaintanceship with the Republican presidential nominee than would otherwise have been possible—as his extensive campaigning tours have served a similar purpose in many other cities and states. It also strengthened belief among those who saw and heard him, that he is sincere in his convictions, earnest in his purposes, and that, if elected to the presidency, he will give the utmost in ability, energy, determination and genuine Americanism to performance of the duties of that high office.

Whatever may be the outcome of next month's election, it is gratifying to realize that, if a change is decided upon, there need be no fear for the future insofar as the presidency is concerned.

Glorious October Weather

A CONSIDERABLE part of the country experienced a freak summer. There was little so-called normal weather. It was either too wet or too dry, too hot or too cold.

Lately, as if to compensate, Nature has treated the victims of her earlier whims to a gorgeous autumn. There has been enough moisture to prevent leaves from withering and falling prematurely. Frosts have been mostly light enough to put a tang in the air without kiling plants and foliage, so that the fall coloring advanced naturally and gradually.

The public, in these favored regions, has been fully aware of the show, taking every opportunity to see it. There has been traffic on the highways that would do justice to the peak of the touring season, with strollers and picnickers in parks and forest preserves.

The winter to come may or may not be long and hard, but the autumn ozone and sunshine and beauty should help to carry people through it in better health and spirits.

Britain Girds for Winter

BRITAIN'S "wooden walls" seem as effective against invasion from the sea as they were in the days of Drake and Nelson, but they cannot fend off aerial invasion. Winston Churchill, Britain's modern Pitt, recognizes the fact as he sadly and eloquently tells his people:

"Do not let us dull for one moment the sense of the awful hazard in which we stand. It is only by supreme and superb exertions, unwearied and indomitable, that we shall save our souls alive.

"Long, dark months of trial and tribulation lie before us. Death and sorrow will be our companions, hardship our garment, constancy and valor our only shield.

"We must be reunited; we must be undaunted; we must be inflexible."

Hearing the blunt truth so well expressed should make it easier. The British people seem to have risen already to a level rare in history. The coming winter will test them as they have never been tested before.

It helps them to know how fully America is with them in spirit, and how this nation stands ready to help them with great and increasing material support. This is the obvious and inevitable thing to do. The vast majority of Americans clearly recognize that this is our fight as well as theirs—that if they fall, the full weight of the destroyers will be turned against us.

Electricity's Expanding Field

LOW COST HOUSING is much in the public mind. The need for more of it becomes steadily more apparent. As the new little houses begin to appear, the fact that their equipment is better and cheaper than ten years ago adds to their attractiveness for purchasers.

The cost of the electric range has dropped almost half within the last five years. A complete electric kitchen, including range, refrigerator and sink with dishwasher and garbage disposal unit, can now be bought for less than the cost of the refrigerator alone in 1924. Other electrical labor-savers, such as washing machine, ironer and vacuum cleaner, are up in quality and down in price. The very fine combination radio and phonograph now costs less than either member of the combine did a few years ago. As for small utensils such as toasters, waffle irons, coffee machines, and so on, they can be bought as casually by the housewife today as a percolator without electric unit was purchased by her mother. Light bulbs, too, now come for small change, at a fraction of their earlier cost.

Word comes that it cost an Illinois orchardist $2,200 to cultivate a single peach—but the cost is said to be even higher in Hollywood.

It is interesting to note that 475,000,000 Chinamen have not yet been swallowed by 90,000,000 Japanese.

SAILOR BEWARE!

Listen World!

School Societies

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ARE HIGH SCHOOL "secret societies"—fraternities and sororities—democratic?

Should they be allowed to exist in public schools which are supported by all classes of taxpayers?

Is it fair to make any American youngster feel handicapped because he lacks the clothes, leisure, culture and cash necessary for membership in such societies?

The State of California says it isn't—and it doesn't mean maybe. Some twenty years ago, a youngster killed himself in that gay, abundant land. He was a skinny little fellow in patched jeans, timid and solitary. He'd had a hard time getting through Grammar School since his help was needed on his father's run-down ranch. But the boy was bright and ambitious. Plodding behind the plough, shivering in his attic room, he dreamed of the glorious day when he would enter Hi and, at last, be one of the "reg'lar fellas."

The day came. But before a week had passed his dream was over. On every side other youngsters were being "bid" for this or that frat or sorority . . . party invitations were being issued. But no friendly hands were outstretched to him . . . no invitations came his way. He had no money, no clothes, no car. Broken-hearted, he took the life that "didn't" rate.

Out of that pitiful tragedy came a law forbidding all secret societies in High School. For a few weeks the state was shaken with shame and remorse. Then, gradually, it forgot. Once again the bids began.

Today, despite the law, frats and sororities flourish in San Francisco's High Schools . . . youngsters start their Freshman year in a hysteria of excitement over who shall be chosen and who shall be left. Illegal? Yes, and both teachers and students know it. On the back of the registration cards, two pledges are printed to be signed, respectively, by the pupil and a parent. They read as follows:

"I certify that I do not belong to, nor am I pledged to become a member of any secret fraternity, sorority or club, composed wholly or partly of high school students; and I promise on my honor, that during my entire high school course I will neither become, nor pledge myself to become, a member of, or in any way connected with, any such organization. Further, I promise not to pledge myself to or affiliate myself with, any college, fraternity, sorority or club, while in high school.

"Student's Signature"

"I shall exert my influence to have my son or daughter keep the above pledge and comply with the Law of the State regarding 'secret-oath-bound fraternities in the public schools.'"

. . . . . .

"Father or Guardian's Sig."

There are the pledges, most of them dutifully signed. Yet "oath-bound" associations swarm on every hand! A few are recognized by the schools—others have no supervision whatever. All require dues and the costly wherewithal for expensive gatherings. Some are so lawless that the youngsters themselves call them "Juvenile Crime Clubs." But one and all promote special privilege and snobbishness and exclude the youngster who "can't make the grade."

How is this possible in a public school, particularly when the state has declared it illegal? The weary and exasperated teachers shrug their shoulders, declare their disapproval but ask—"What can we do about it? There are no teeth in the law. Even if there were, it would be almost impossible to enforce, for most of the parents are as enthusiastic about such societies as the youngsters themselves and as anxious to have them bid."

Nor is this condition peculiar to San Francisco or California. The same problem confronts hundreds of other High Schools in various states. Obviously such clubs disregard every democratic principle. Of late, many of them have become nurseries of Communism, Fascism, Nazism. Yet no one lifts a hand against them!

SO WHAT?

This subject, with more detailed evidence, will be continued. What's YOUR reaction? What condition exists in YOUR city schools? We want to know. America NEEDS to know. Addresses will be regarded as confidential if so requested.)

Hines to Prison.

James J. Hines must serve from four to eight years in a New York prison. The last appeal of the once potent leader in New York City's Tammany Hall has been denied by the Court of Appeals at Albany. A successful conclusion is reached in the chief case against a politician brought by Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey, charging a corrupt alliance with notorious gangsters.

Hines, it was proved, got for four years from $500 to $1,000 a week from operators of policy games. Dewey's prosecutions nearly won him the Republican presidential nomination this year. They are among the historically effective services performed by an American prosecutor. Dewey is in line to run again for governor of New York, in 1942, as Gov. Lehman's present term ends.—Detroit News.

This Is Ohio

REID'S Yellow Dent corn was for many years the leading variety in the entire corn belt. James L. Reid, noted corn breeder, was an Ohio-born boy. His parents lived in Brown county.

In his first experiment, Reid used a late-maturing Ohio variety, the Gordon Hopkins. The crop, although good, ripened imperfectly. The best ears were selected for seed for the following year, but he had a poor stand. Missing hills were replanted with Little Yellow, an early Flint corn held to be a direct legacy from the Indians.

The accidental cross of the two varieties resulted in a corn which was the foundation of Reid's Yellow Dent. Reid later was heralded as the man who had put more millions of dollars into the pockets of corn-belt farmers than any other.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Jap Oil Embargo Hotly Debated, Attack on East Indias Predicted

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—We have seen, in yesterday's Merry-Go-Round column on the Far Eastern crisis, how the United States and Great Britain planned to cut off Japan's scrap iron, oil, cotton and copper during the first invasion of China in 1937, and thus paralyze the Japanese military machine.

This plan was revived again during the Panay incident in 1938, but each time there were differences of opinion inside the administration and the plan fell flat.

Today, almost exactly the same problem faces the administration, and again there are basic differences of opinion—differences which are honest and natural when the future peace of the country is at stake.

The group inside the cabinet which favors a complete stoppage of Japan's raw materials of war, especially her oil, includes Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Knox, Secretary of Interior Ickes, and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau — also certain admirals in the navy. Perhaps it is significant that the strongest advocates of complete embargoes against Japan are the three Republican members of the cabinet—Stimson, Knox and Ickes.

On the other hand, the state department plus some of the admirals favor a go-slow policy toward Japan. They believe in applying the embargoes gradually, or as Mr. Ickes describes it, "cutting off the dog's tail by inches."

* * *

Japan Might Attack.

SPECIFICALLY, they do not believe in cutting off Japan's oil supply—which is the all-important question under diplomatic discussion between the British and American governments.

The state department concurs that cutting off Japan's oil would paralyze her fleet after her present two and a half months' supply was exhausted. But they also believe it would force Japan to move into the Dutch East Indies immediately in order to get more oil.

However, the embargo-now group within the cabinet contends that the Dutch East Indies are fortified sufficiently to withstand four months' siege, and that with the U. S. fleet on guard in that general area, Japan could not risk an attack on these islands.

What makes the intra-cabinet debate doubly vital is knowledge that as long as the British fleet keeps the Italian and Nazi fleets bottled up in Europe, the U. S. fleet can operate as a one-ocean navy, thereby keeping most of its vessels on guard against Japan in the Pacific. But once Britain's naval defense weakens, then the United States will have the navies of the European dictators to contend with in the Atlantic, plus the Japanese in the Pacific.

And a two-ocean drive on South America by both the dictators and Japan is more than the navy likes to contemplate. That is the chief argument behind the "total-embargo now" group.

* * *

Limited Oil Embargo.

THE cabinet difference first came to a head more than a month ago when the action-now group placed on the president's desk an executive order embargoing the sale of oil.

They argued that with the military clique in Japan actually threatening war, they could not continue to give the Japanese navy this vital fuel. The president concurred and signed the order. Then it went over to the state department to be carried out. And the state department revised the order so that it applies only to high-test gasoline.

The embargo-now group also advocated an immediate stoppage of all scrap iron shipments to Japan. But the state department again intervened so that scrap iron shipments continued on everything except "No. 1 scrap," and even No. 1 scrap could be shipped on license. It was only the other day that the sale of all scrap iron, after much urging by the National Defense Commission, was finally embargoed.

The question of cutting off oil to Japan still is a moot question inside the cabinet, and is being discussed with the British government.

* * *

Navy vs. State Department.

LAST WEEK one argument over this point and over general naval policy in the Far East developed into a hot debate between the navy, on one side, and Hull and Welles on the other. It took place at the White House, in front of the president, who did most of the listening.

Hull and Welles contended that if we stopped Japan's oil supply she would certainly attack the Dutch East Indies, and that the United States could not possibly afford to have ships in that area because they might be needed in Atlantic waters. Welles pointed out that the Germans might seize the Azores or the French naval base at Dakar, West Africa, which would menace South America.

To this, Admiral Leahy, now governor of Puerto Rico and one of Roosevelt's closest naval advisers, replied:

"Gentlemen, we don't have to worry about Dakar and the Azores now. The British fleet can still prevent Germany from taking them. But a few months from now it may be different. By next spring, or even this winter, the war may have gone against the British in the Mediterranean, and then we'll have two oceans to defend. Now we have only one."

* * *

"Firebrand" Leahy.

PARTICIPATING in the discussion were Secretary of the Navy Knox, Republican; Admiral Richardson, commander of the U. S. fleet, and Admiral Stark, chief of naval operations. The argument continued roughshod, and at one point Welles told Admiral Leahy: "You always were something of a firebrand."

To this Leahy replied that he was simply looking naval facts in the face, that he knew what the British were up against, and that we were a lot better off if we gave the British help in the Pacific now. "If we wait," Admiral Leahy concluded, "it may be too late."

Welles then pointed out that a blockade of Japan would mean cutting off the planes which are now being sold to Great Britain, since they would be needed in the Pacific.

"Not at all," replied Leahy. "We will use exactly the planes which the navy has today. We can't get any more planes on our airplane carriers than we have at present, so we can't use any more planes until we build new airplane carriers, and they aren't built in a month or even nine months. So the British can keep right on getting their planes."

Secretary Knox supported Leahy emphatically throughout the argument, and the meeting ended, after some of the most bare-knuckle discussion recently exchanged on foreign policy, with no definite decision.

Further conferences are being held, and a final decision on shutting off all Japan's war supplies probably will depend on developments in both the Far East and Europe.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Ed Wynn, having breakfast on a train one morning, looked up from his eggs and moodily declared, "My life is like a goldfish in a bowl. No privacy whatever."

Just at that moment a waiter appeared with a lone piece of toast on a tray. . . . "The lady two tables from the end wants you to autograph this for her," he said.

"You see what I mean," cried Wynn, "no provacy at all." Whereupon he gravely bit a piece out of the toast and sent it back to the lady.

I think I may have related this episode in some previous column. But it is so typical of this zany-eared comedian that, caught in the spell of his latest venture in foolery, I wanted to bring it up and sit it down beside an episode out of Wynn's new show, which almost everyone agrees is very, very funny.

* * *

WHEN Wynn is funny he is very, very funny, and when he isn't he is very unfunny. This new show, "Boys and Girls Together," is mostly all Wynn, and he doesn't pause from the moment he arrives in a cloud of mothball vapors until around midnight.

He has some new inventions this time, too, and one of them is a gun that shoots in all directions at once—to ensure him against missing. He also has a piano balanced finely on a bicycle, which he plays while riding around.

The little episode that I wanted to sit beside the autographed toast, which came out of real life, concerns this piano. He is talking to Jane Pickens at the time.

"I didn't know you could play the piano," said Jane.

"I couldn't," replied Wynn, "until I hurt my hand several months ago, and I asked the doctor if I could play the piano when it was well. He said I could, and when they took the bandages off, sure enough I could play."

It is things like this, delivered in Wynn's droll lisp, that make people forget about world revolutions. His is the spontaneous combustion of wit without malice. No one is ever hurt by his remarks. He never gibes at another's expense. His humor always grows out of situations that are normally brought about, and this, I think, is the true test of comedy.

* * *

IN Wynn's possession is the most extensive single collection of jokes in the world. He has been gathering and filing them for a generation. They number into the hundreds of thousands, although Ed Wynn himself refers to them as "variations."

"There aren't more than eight or ten original jokes," he tells you. "All the others are variations of these basic themes. I have as many as three hundred jokes based on a single pattern."

Variations or no, when Wynn tells them they usually make an impression. One of his earlier, and to me one of his best, still makes me laugh every time I think of it. It's the one about the boys who were bragging about their diving exploits.

A Farmer's Diary

More About Wasps

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

NOVEMBER is a sad time for the yellow jackets. Yesterday I traveled up to observe a nest that was sliced open by the plow on the farm of a friend. I noticed the farmer had left a weedy place unplowed where the danger center was . . . after being stung and calming his hurt and frightened team, he had not ventured to go near again.

The morning was rather warm. I looked sharply, but found only one wasp crawling stiffly along the upper entrance. I placed my ear close to the open side and listened. Occasionally I heard a sound like tardily moving feet, amplified and reflected by the walls of the paper-like nest. I took my forefinger and scratched the wall. Six different divisions of dead air spaces were there to make a perfect insulation against heat or cold. Here, I thought, were the first air conditioning engineers—and so far as insulting principles are concerned, man's ingenuity has not yet surpassed the native instinct of the tiny wasp.

When I had pared the paper shell away for ten square inches, I saw eight layers of brood comb, less than a half inch apart, held firmly in place by tough fibrous pillars. The open ends of the cells were downward. In this position the grub is always found.

As the sun shone in warmly at the opening I had made, I saw several workers move about with greater ease. During two weeks' time, the whole atmosphere of this colony had changed. The portion of the insects' backs between the wings was now a dusty gray, instead of the clear shiny hue I had noticed earlier. I saw five different workers go to the cells where hungry grubs were waiting, yank them out and bear them wriggling to the edge of the nest, there to dump them overboard. Other workers went outside and sat in the sun, as though enjoying a sunbath. One walked down to the very tip of the partially vacant combs, and tumbled headlong into the pit beneath, among the discarded parts of bodies, and dead and dying grubs. It did not seem to care to rise. Between the sunlit combs, however, I saw no corpses.

It likely is a solemn pact between the members of this family, that death shall not remain within their house. One by one, they drop into the pit beneath the nest, and even the vacant house becomes tattered and consumed by ravenous larvae of a stubby, dirty colored moth.

The home is new again every season. I wondered how the new life started in the spring, but books do not tell. I can only surmise, that queens leave eggs sealed in with a food supply, and that these hatch into other queens that perpetuate the line.

GERMAN FLIERS STRIKE ACROSS KENT COASTLINE

The government said "reports indicate, however, that the general extent of the damage is slight and that there have been only a small number of casualties."

British bombers, meanwhile, attacked naval bases in Germany, the Nazi-held channel coast and "an important oil target in central Germany," it was announced.

The air ministry denied a Nazi claim that a British troop train was bombed yesterday with at least 300 casualties, asserting that "the only incident to which the German account can possibly refer" was an unsuccessful attempt to hit a freight train near the Welsh border.

Germans Claim Success in Raids

BERLIN —(U.P.)—With clearing weather, German bombers today resumed their raids on England after being held to their bases early in the morning, according to an official Berlin announcement.

The statement said the first waves of German raiders bombed objectives in London at 9:50 a. m. (3:50 a. m. EST).

In addition, it was claimed successful raids were carried out during the night on southern and middle England despite bad weather. Two British and two German planes were lost in yesterday's air battles, the announcement said.

Earlier it was stated that reconnaissance planes reported sighting large fires in London and elsewhere as a result of the night attacks.

Shortly after midnight a German announcement said that hundreds of German bombers participated in the night raid on London.

It added that an R. A. F. hangar near Cheltenham was destroyed by three direct bomb hits yesterday afternoon.

German authorities claimed that one R. A. F. bomber attempting to penetrate into Germany was shot down by anti-aircraft batteries along the Dutch coast.

Spain Announces Cabinet Shake-up

MADRID —(AP)— In a cabinet shakeup widely regarded as evidence of Spain's firm ties with the Rome-Berlin Axis, Generalissimo Francisco Franco today made Ramon Serrano Suner, recent special emissary to Germany and Italy, his foreign minister.

Political observers regarded the shift as sure to be welcomed by the German and Italian governments, for Serrano Suner is considered one of the staunchest friends those powers have in Spain.

Franco's decrees scotched rumors that Serrano Suner, his brother-in-law, was slated to go out of the cabinet. Instead, he emerged stronger than ever and possessed of a portfolio he is known to have desired. Serrano Suner replaced Col. Juan Beigbedery Atienza.

It was as the generalissimo's personal representative that Serrano Suner went to Berlin and then to Rome for conferences with Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini. He only recently returned to Madrid.

British Repeat Port Attacks

LONDON—(AP)—The RAF's incessant bombardment of German war bases and war industries, now tied in with a growing naval offensive, was reported today to have caused new "extensive fires" at Kiel and fresh damage at Hamburg, Bremen and Cuxhaven.

The fierceness of attack and defense in last night's RAF operations was hinted in a concise air ministry communique acknowledging loss of five planes.

Prowling for action in the English channel and the North sea, British warships were reported last night to have destroyed an entire convoy of five German vessels and to have attacked a sixth ship "successfully."

In the Mediterranean phases the admiralty admitted the 9,100-ton cruiser Liverpool had been damaged in an Italian torpedo-plane attack. The Liverpool, one of eight ships of the Southampton class, reached her base with an undisclosed number of casualties.

WAITS IN JAIL FOR JURY PROBE

Clarence Ford, 98 South Franklin avenue, was held in the county jail today awaiting jury action on a charge of embezzlement.

Arraigned in municipal court yesterday, Ford pleaded innocent to the charge filed by the Fairmount Creamery company, waived preliminary hearing and asked to be bound over to the grand jury. Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch fixed bond at $1,000.

The affidavit, signed by N. C. Durrance, representative of the firm, accuses Ford, a former employe, of converting $470 of the firm's funds to his own use.

9,396 REGISTER IN DRAFT, THREE BOARDS AT WORK

dles the cards from Wards one, two, three and four, will work in the Memorial building; board number two, assigned to Wards five and six, and Madison township, will work from the American Legion home, and board three, which includes all of the county outside of the township, will have headquarters in the court of appeals room.

When the three boards are assembled for their area work, all cards will be shuffled and then will be assigned serial numbers, starting with number one. The cards must all be numbered and the numbers sent to Washington by Oct. 21. There will be a lottery in which the numbers will be drawn and the first one drawn—whether it is 258 or 2,000—becomes number one in every draft area in the county and so on down the list of numbers.

This drawing will give every registrant a new serial number which will be his permanent one. The first local numbers should be made public within a few days, spokesmen for the boards said today.

After a man's permanent number is drawn, he will receive a questionnaire by mail, which will ask questions regarding marriage, dependents, occupation, health and past record. If his number is one of the first ones, he will receive his questionnaire almost immediately; if he draws a higher number, it will be some time before his questionnaire is mailed to him.

These must be filled out and then sent to the local draft board of his area. The board classifies the men and if because of dependents, occupation or for other reasons, the registrant is placed in the deferred class, this will be the last contact with the board unless the classification is changed.

If placed in the first class, A-1, the men will be included in the "fit for military service" list. Even the men in this class stands a four to one chance of not being called, as only about 400,000 will be taken in the first call.

With the swearing in at Washington of Clarence A. Dykstra, newly appointed director of conscription federal machinery was being geared today to handle the estimated 16,404,000 registered names. The new director, who is on a year's leave of absence from the University of Wisconsin, will take the oath of office today and begin setting up his nation wide oraganization.

With reports turned into Columbus today from 60 of the state's 88 counties, selective service headquarters estimated a total registration of 850,000 men in Ohio yesterday.

Actual figures exceeded pre-registration day figures, but state authorities pointed out that there were many men from outside the state who registered in Ohio.

Registration figures in Shelby were considerably higher than anticipated. It was estimated that nearly 600 would register, but when the cards were counted last night there were 953. Mayor W. R. Morris and Councilman Ross Sipes were the only city officials young enough to register.

devices were being spotted by the engineering department. Street department painters today have already started the job of marking off the 20-foot parking spaces in the downtown district.

Crafton said the meters will be placed on Walnut and Main street between West Second and West Fourth streets; West Fourth, West Third and Park avenue west between North Mulberry and North Diamond streets, around the inside of Central park and on South and North Park streets.

Plans call for the elimination of angle parking on the North side of North Park street and the south side of South Park street to expedite the movement of traffic around central park, the director said.

Meter representatives said today that installation of the meter posts would be started within the next two weeks and that they expected to have the machines in operation by Nov. 10.

Japs Threaten Hong Kong Raid

TOKYO— (U.P.) —Newspapers, in angry editorials on the reopening of the Burma road to China, made threats against British Hong Kong today and said that the government would pay particular attention to the fact that ships carrying American supplies for China called there on their way to Burma.

It was asserted that the government, regarding the reopening of the Burma road as British-American retaliation to its alliance with Germany and Italy, would be compelled to take proper and effective measures" if British authorities ignored Japan's wishes and used Hong Kong "as a base for pro-Chinese and anti-Japanese activities."

The Japanese consul general at Hong Kong, the newspapers said, had advised British authorities that supplies which had been prohibited by the Burma route had been forbidden also via Hong Kong under previous British instructions, and that the Hong Kong prohibition had carried no expiration date.

British authorities, the newspapers asserted, held that in view of the reopening of the Burma road the Hong Kong prohibition had lapsed also.

WILLKIE HITS AT NEW DEAL UNEMPLOYMENT

Says America Must Choose Between GOP Jobs and Present Idleness.

groups, including the AFL and CIO, to help set up a national training or apprentice program.

5 Coordinating relief efforts of federal, state and local agencies by congressional action, along with establishing a research department to study relief in operation.

His voice slightly hoarse and occasionally breaking, Willkie spoke at Crosley field, home of the world champion Cincinnati Reds, to an applauding crowd estimated by Police Chief E. G. Weatherly at 14,000. A cold white moon shown down, but Willkie shunned a topcoat. When he finished talking, he jumped on top of the reading stand to wave goodbye.

Both his Cincinnati and Evansville speeches contained an argument that the Roosevelt administration did not believe unemployment could be cured.

"The New Deal tells us that we have nothing to look forward to as a nation but endless unemployment, growing dependence upon the state," his Evansville text said.

"Obviously, no administration that doesn't believe it is possible to get jobs will ever be able to get them. The New Deal says to you: Why take a chance? Why take a chance on changing administrations at this time?

"We say to you: What have you got to lose?"

Willkie described a cartoon picturing him with a sign saying, "A job in every home." He said it was issued by the Democratic national committee "because they thought it was very silly."

"If America has reached the point where that is a silly and laughable idea," he added, "then there is not much hope left for us."

Wallace Urges Higher Payments

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— Henry A. Wallace, Democratic vice presidential nominee, carried his campaign into West Virginia today after telling a Pittsburgh audience the unemployment insurance system "will have to be made more generous."

His itinerary called for stops and brief speeches at Wheeling and other Ohio river communities during the day, followed by a formal address at Parkersburg, W. Va., tonight.

Speaking at Pittsburgh last night, the former secretary of agriculture struck back at a Republican charge that social security benefits will not be paid if the Democratic administration is re-elected.

Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, said at Youngstown, O., on Oct. 3 that if the Roosevelt administration is re-elected "no social security will ever be paid because this nation will go bankrupt."

Wallace, while not mentioning Willkie, said:

"Such talk is in the same class with the story that went out in pay envelopes just before the election in 1936, that you would have to wear license numbers around your necks like dogs.

"As a matter of fact, the unemployment insurance system has turned out to be too conservative and it will have to be made more generous. In Pennsylvania, for instance, from the beginning down to July, 1940, $152,000,000 has been paid out and $261,000,000 taken in, leaving a surplus of $109,000,000. This is too much of a surplus and the law will have to be amended. . . ."

Dewey Joins in New Deal Attack

SAGINAW, Mich. — (INS) — The assertion that there are "six slippery roads to totalitarianism and the New Deal has taken them all" was left today by Thomas E. Dewey, New York City district attorney.

Speaking to a Republican rally last night, Dewey championed the cause of Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, and at the same time urged the re-election of Michigan's Gov. Luren D. Dickinson and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg.

The young district attorney's six chief points against the New Deal were that it allegedly has spread discord in the name of national unity; made many permanently dependent upon government; failed to adhere to its word; sought to concentrate the balance of power in one man, and produced a boss ridden regimented party.

STORM DAMAGE

India Coast Town and Shipping Wrecked By Typhoon.

BANGKOK — (INS) — Coastal towns and shipping in India and the Malay archipelago today counted damage from a severe Indian ocean typhoon which wrecked port facilities and apparently sank several ships at sea.

Wreckage washed ashore at several points indicated that some ships had been sunk. Near Bombay, apparently center of the storm, many houses were carried away.

FOUND DEAD

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Paul W. Pinkerton 53, examining board member of the International Accounting society, was found dead in the closet of his hotel room last night. Police Lieut. Harry Murphy said a metal capsule labeled poison and notes indicating despondency were found in the room

INAUGURATION

Denison University Inducts New President Friday.

GRANVILLE— (U.P.) —Governor Bricker will extend the state's greetings to Denison university Friday during inauguration services for Dr. Kenneth I. Brown as president.

Presidents of 50 colleges and representatives of 150 other institutions will attend the inaugural service Friday afternoon on the campus.

Dr. Alan Valentine, president of the University of Rochester, will make the principal address.

Dr. Brown, 44, succeeds Dr. Avery A. Shaw as president of Denison, after ten years as head of Hiram college. Dr. Brown holds degrees from Rochester and Harvard.

CHECK DEATHS

SALT LAKE CITY—(INS)—Salt Lake citizens now have no trouble keeping an accurate check on the automobile fatalities. To constantly remind the public of the number of fatal accidents yearly, Salt Lake City police have donned gold armbands with blue numbers. The numbers represent the fatal accidents in the city so far this year.

SCIENCE FINDS MISSING LINK IN ELEMENTS

'Old 93' Discovered by U. of California Physics Professor.

SACRAMENTO, Cal. — (INS) — The achievement for which the whole world of science has been waiting—the discovery of missing element number 93—has been made by University of California scientists.

Like a cook's recipe for a cake, the recipe for all creation has consisted of 92 known elements—basic building blocks of the universe.

The new element, a new kind of atom which together with other atomic structures, makes up the composition of all matter whether it be water, air, iron or salt.

So new is this element that no name has been given it, although it could be named after the university's cyclotron which made possible its discovery.

Or still another name might be "ether," a composition which the ancients believed pervaded all space and matter. Indications are that the new element is an all-pervading structure present in all molecular formations.

The achievement was announced by Dr. Edwin M. McMillan, assistant professor of physics at the University of California, and Dr. Philip Hague Abelson of the Carnegie Institute, Washington, D. C.

Revelation of the new element was made through experiments upon uranium, heaviest of all known elements. The investigators bombarded a specially prepared sheet of uranium but one ten thousandth of a milimeter thick.

Bombardment agencies used were atomic particles from the University's cyclotron.

Open Program Series Tonight

Shown above is the Knickerbocker Quartet, nationally known musical team, which will open a series of four programs tonight sponsored jointly by the Kiwanis club and the Junior Association of Commerce. Proceeds from the series will go to the Friendly House. Each of the four programs will be held on succeeding Thursdays in the Mansfield Senior high school auditorium at 8:15 p. m.

MOURNS CIRCUS

Former Clown Sees Big Top Coming To End.

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—The day of the circus clown virtually has come to an end.

So says Arthur Borella, for 40 years one of America's leading clowns. Borella himself has forsaken the big tent to lecture before clubs and schools on circus life.

"Circuses are becoming fewer and fewer," he said. "There are only two big shows left that travel by railroad, and the smaller wagon shows are dying out.

"Motion pictures, radio and auto travel taking small towners to the big cities for their enjoyment have done it. In addition, I think circuses charge too much."

ACCEPTS STORY

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — (INS) — Arrested when police found him standing against a store window holding a brick wrapped in a paper sack, Henry Davis, 40-year-old negro, explained: "I was carrying it for protection against a man who was threatening to cut me with a knife. I was just waiting for a street car when the cops picked me up." Accepting the story, City Judge Bateman dismissed all charges.

All but three of Texas' 254 counties have acreage leased for oil and gas exploration or production.

DR. F. M. EDWARDS' DISCOVERY FOR CONSTIPATION

Benefits Nation of Sufferers!

COLUMBUS, OHIO: For over 20 years Dr. F. M. Edwards (widely known physician) successfully treated scores of patients for constipation and the headaches, lack of energy and mental dullness which often result.

This wise Doctor knew liver bile must flow freely every day into your intestines or fatty foods can't be properly digested and you may become constipated. So he kept this in mind when he perfected his famous Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Olive Tablets, being purely vegetable, are wonderful, yet they assure gentle, thorough bowel movements and ALSO help stimulate bile flow. Test their goodness TONIGHT! 15¢, 30¢, 60¢.

CO-OPERATION

Railroad President Pledges Support To Air Program.

CHICAGO — (INS) — William M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific railroad, has pledged full co-operation of the industry in a drive to make this nation supreme in the skies.

"What helps the country helps all business," he declared here recently, "and what helps business helps the railroads. Attention centers today on building military planes.

As citizens we stand squarely behind such a project. As transportation men we see another need, which is to strengthen commercial aviation.

"Some may see in this a diversion of business from the railroads to the air—a narrow view. Co-operation counts for more than competition. On that basis we welcome the growth of aviation."

CASTLES IN THE AIR?

Today an idea . . . tomorrow a reality . . . thus the wonders of America are born.

Their foundations lie in the minds of men . . . men who dare dream . . . men who labor to make their dreams come true. Just a little over a year ago SOHIO SUPREME gasoline was a "castle in the air," too. But today SOHIO SUPREME exists as evidence that the ingenuity of the dreamer is not dead—that new ideas are continually being transformed into material, useful things that improve our American way of life.

PREPAREDNESS REFLECTED IN COLLEGE RANKS

Students Answer National Defense Call, Joining ROTC Units.

ST. LOUIS—World events have shaped a new course for thousands of students—national defense.

The preparedness program, calling eventually for conscription of many of the students, has projected itself forcefully into campus life.

They are answering it with a great increase, in some cases unprecedented, in enrollments in units of the reserve officers' training corps. They are replying with enthusiasm through the pilot training program of the civil aeronautics administration.

And more and more of them are finding a solution in specialized studies to promote their usefulness in a national emergency.

A former ROTC corporal at the University of Missouri recalls that most of the students were only too eager to turn in their uniforms after two years of "squad right" in the required besic course. That, however, was before the European war brought home the necessity of strengthening the nation's defenses.

At the Columbia, Mo., school this year, Col. Lloyd E. Jones, in charge of the ROTC, reported more than twice as many applicants for advanced training as in 1939. A total of 699 juniors—131 more than a year ago—were accepted.

FOOLING COP

LAKE CHARLES, La.—(U.P.)—Patrolman Tobe Mercantel stopped a car crowded with young people when it made a wrong turn. He began lecturing them, but the occupants flourished their hands to show him they were deaf and dumb. Penitently, the officer waved them on. And then he remembered. How had they heard his whistle to stop if they were deaf?

'WHAT IT TAKES'

DETROIT—(INS)—Fourteen different machines are used to make the engine block of a motor car, according to a new pamphlet of the Automobile Manufacturers association explaining "What It Takes to Make an Automobile." One machine has 127 tools in all to drill holes in the bottom and sides and to rough bore the cylinders.

ADOPTS KITTENS

BROOKFIELD, Mo.—(AP)—Speaking figuratively, a Plymouth Rock hen at the Francis Steland place didn't even lift an eyebrow when she found three kittens with the chicks in her nest. A mother cat had carefully deposited the kits and then scooted. The hen spread her wings over both chicks and kittens and clucked contentedly.

HAS PATRIOTIC MUSICAL RARITY

Library of Congress Acquires First Published Version of National Anthem.

WASHINGTON—The library of congress announced today that it had just acquired a real patriotic rarity—a copy of the first published version of America's national anthem—the Star Spangled Banner.

The small broadside, or handbill, 8 by 6½ inches and containing the full text of the song together with a short account of how it came to be written, is one of only two known to exist.

The library obtained it from Jesse L. Cassard of Baltimore who found it in an old scrapbook in his attic. The only other known copy is in the Walters Art Gallery in Baltimore.

The first printing of Francis Scott Key's famous poem happened to be a broadside because at the time of its production in 1814 all newspapers in Baltimore had suspened publication while every ablebodied man in the city shouldered a gun against the British.

The library of congress now has virtually a complete collection of early editions of the Star Spangled Banner, including the first printing with music, engraved by Thomas Carr, of Baltimore. About the only thing it lacks is the first full manuscript draft, of which the Walters Art Galley is the proud possessor.

The Philippines have about 1,600 different species of fish, only about 100 of which are marketed.

A Personal Message TO ALL VOTERS

When you elect a public official you not only give him the power to do what is right, but also the power to do what is wrong. It all depends upon his sense of duty.

Actual day-by-day experience in the important office of prosecuting attorney is a vital asset to a candidate for it creates a record which the people may examine and then determine whether his sense of duty is stronger than party spirit.

Since my appointment as your assistant prosecutor I have assisted in the investigation of 759 criminal cases from which the grand jury indicted 691 defendants. 1525 witnesses were subpoenaed and appeared before 37 grand jury sessions.

It is my sincere belief that the function of an honest prosecutor is to lend his support to the promotion of a law abiding community, and conduct his prosecution of a case in a fair but firm manner, regardless of race, color or creed. To do this he must bring all facts into the open.

This year the last name of each candidate for the office of prosecuting attorney is Lutz. We are not related.

My name is Harold Lutz, now your assistant prosecuting attorney, and the Democratic candidate for this office.

MAY I SINCERELY SOLICIT YOUR SUPPORT OF MY CANDIDACY.

STUDY CLUBS CONDUCT REGULAR MEETINGS

Sappho Members Have Program on Music, Perfumes: Mrs. Roller Speaks to Philomathian; Mrs. Sanford Gives Play Review.

MEETINGS of study clubs yesterday occupied a number of Mansfield women as they gathered in homes and at the Women's Club for their sessions. The Sappho members met with Mrs. J. H. Bristor at the Club for an afternoon session with Miss Mary Proctor giving a paper, "Perfumes, Old and New." She began with the frank incense and myrrh of the Old Testament, and explained the natural and synthetic process up to the modern containers and designs.

Mrs. Claude Ewing sang "Lotus Flower" by Schumann, "Julia's Garden" by Rogers, and "Thank God for a Garden" by Del Riego. Mrs. H. H. Clingan gave "Columbine" by Torjussen and "Pointsettias" by Mana-Zucca. The next meeting will be a luncheon Oct. 30 at the club with Mrs. J. G. Wallace, Miss Helen Hartman, Mrs. J. M. Garber and Mrs. G. G. Rohleder giving the program.

Luncheon hostesses are Mrs. W. E. Renwick, Mrs. Bruce Rogers, Mrs. Rohleder, Mrs. F. E. Rudd and Mrs. L. J. Schubert.

* * *

The home of Mrs. Otis Cummins, Edgewood road, was the scene of the meeting of the Philomathian club which was attended by 14 members and two guests, Mrs. Joseph Waters, Rome, N. Y., and Mrs. James Eberle. Miss Katharine Hartman was elected to the post of custodian during the business meeting.

Mrs. David N. Roller gave a paper on the history of bells, and displayed her bell collection. Autumn decorations were used on the table, and Miss Angeline Shaneff poured. The next meeting will be held Oct. 30 at the home of Mrs. Richard Tappan with Mrs. Cummings giving the paper.

* * *

Mrs. Henry Sanford reviewed the play, "The Gentle People," by Shaw yesterday afternoon during a meeting of the Wednesday Study club at the home of Mrs. Charles E. Nail, 730 Woodhill road. This play was a fairy tale with a moral, illustrating that justice triumphs and that meek people win over violent men.

Pink geraniums decorated the tea table, and Mrs. Ephraim Brown presided. The next meeting, Oct. 30, will be with Mrs. E. R. Hartman, and Mrs. Alan Tappan will give the program.

HAVE DINNER.

There were 39 members of Beta Epsilon, business girls' organization at the Y. W. C. A., present for a dinner meeting at the Evergreen's last evening. The table was decorated with flowers and lighted tapers, and Miss Kay Johnson had charge of the arrangements. Miss Elizabeth McBride spoke on "Symbols of Hope" after the dinner. Another club meeting will be held at the Y. W. C. A. next Wednesday evening.

Have Costume Party to Celebrate Birthday

Mrs. Courtney Hostess To Missionary Society

There were 20 members and one guest, Mrs. Katharine Courtney, present at the meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the United Presbyterian church yesterday when Mrs. A. E. Courtney, Sherman avenue, served as hostess for a regular session. Mrs. I. F. Newcomer was associate, and led the devotions, while Mrs. W. E. Shane was in charge of the meeting, and Mrs. J. M. Finney was program chairman.

"Love" was the theme of the discussion, and Mrs. W. F. Miller and Miss Maud Stewart gave papers. Refreshments were served, and Mrs. George Rusk invited the group to her home at 174 West First street. Mrs. Frank Williams will assist. The date will be announced later.

* * *

HAVE DINNER.

Members of the Sarah Pfeifer auxiliary, No. 4, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War gathered in the pavilion at North Lake park for a covered-dish dinner yesterday evening. Mrs. Sarah Case was in charge of the meeting, at which time plans were made for members to attend a district meeting in Fredericksberg Sunday. The next meeting, Nov. 6, will be held at the court house, and inspection will be an event of Nov. 20.

FIRST DANCE.

The first in the fall-winter series of Mystic club dances will be held tomorrow night at the Masonic temple, officials announced today. There will be dancing from 9:30 p. m. to 12:30 a. m. with the music of Nels Blocher. Tickets for single dances or the series are available from board members.

Celebrates

In the above photo is shown Mrs. Amanda Elizabeth Calver, 296 East First street, who was born near Mansfield Oct. 17, 1850. She is quietly observing her 90th birthday today. Mrs. Calver is the mother of Mrs. Alice Hammett, Mrs. Harry Snider, Jay, Rob and Charles, all of Mansfield, and Harry and Frank, Lexington. She has 22 grandchidlren and 19 great grandchildren. Mrs. Calver, who has been active for many years in the First Christian church, will be honored at a family party Sunday at North Lake park.

SET WEDDING DATE.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Myers, R. D. 1, are announcing the approaching marriage of their daughter, Esther, to Joseph Hammer, 296 Spring street. The wedding will be solemnized before the altar of the First Lutheran church in Shelby at 7:30 o'clock on the evening of Oct. 19. Later that evening a reception will be held at the Union Grange hall in Jackson township.

Family Surprises Pair With Affair

Members of Mr. and Mrs. Casper M. Hoffman's family surprised them with a party at their home on the Oak street road last evening in honor of their 56th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman are life-long residents of Mansfield and have lived in their present home for the past 50 years. Before the marriage, Oct. 16, 1884, Mrs. Hoffman was Miss Rosa Sutter.

The Hoffmans are the parents of 13 children, ten of whom are living. They are: Mrs. Hattie Ward, Mrs. Mary Rouse, Mrs. Lillie Rinehart, Mrs. Rosa Metzger, Martin, Albert, Clarence and Philip, all of Mansfield; Charles of Bellville, and Theodore of Canton. They have 34 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Games and contests were the evening's diversion, and at a late hour refreshments were served. The couple received a gift of silver in honor of the occasion.

Several Papers Given At District Meeting

There were 22 members of the Third District of the First Lutheran church present at the meeting held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Lindeman, 517 West Fourth street, yesterday. Associate hostesses were Mrs. Harry Zellner and Miss Bee Drake. Mrs. F. A. McCune presented the program and led the devotions.

Mrs. Lillian Parker spoke on the migrants of California, and Mrs. Charles Chew gave a travel talk on her trip to Mexico. Mrs. Otis Sowash, 539 West Fourth street, will entertain Nov. 13.

THEATERS

Greer Garson, Leading Lady.

The co-starring of Greer Garson and Laurence Olivier in the filmization of Jane Austen's classic romantic comedy, "Pride and Prejudice," makes for an impressive human interest story at the Ohio today and tomorrow. It was only a few years ago that through Mr. Olivier, Miss Garson was given her chance in London on the stage. The picture brings to the screen an amusing era in English history when family pride and position were considered above all else.

* * *

Family Life Comedy.

A down to earth comedy of family life is shown in "Calling All Husbands," playing Friday only at the Madison. Leads in the cast are taken by George Tobias, Lucille Fairbanks and Ernest Truex. It is a story about a hen-pecked husband who discovers that he can say "no" to his wife without having to duck. It was written for the screen by Robert Kent from a play by Martin Flavin.

* * *

International Intrigue.

Gene Autry tangles with international intrigue in his newest musical western "Western Jamboree" showing at the Park through Saturday. He is seen as a ranch foreman of the Circle J. ranch, on which the powerful helium gas is located. Since it is sought by foreign powers many complications arise. Co-feature is "The Man With Nine Lives," starring Boris Karloff.

* * *

Action In Double Bill.

"Glamor For Sale" is the main attraction at the Majestic Friday and Saturday, with Anita Louise, Roger Pryor and June MacCloy in the leads. Pryor plays the role of a police officer who is made an undercover agent to determine which escort bureaus are operating unlawfully. Co-feature is "The Durango Kid," in which Charles Starrett is starred.

* * *

George Brent In Lead.

A dramatic situation opens the story as the confession of a murderer clears a boy of the crime for which he was executed, in the drama, "The Man Who Talked Too Much," showing at the Ritz Friday and Saturday. George Brent and Virginia Bruce are co-starred in this story of the underworld. Co-feature is "Roll Wagons Roll," an exciting feature.

Mr. Dussaq Opens Lecture - Luncheon Series Next Week

Rene Dussaq will be the first out-of-town guest lecturer to appear before a Mansfield Federation of Women audience when he speaks here Oct. 22 at the Ohio theater at 11 a. m. A luncheon will be served following the talk at the Women's Club. Reservations must be made at the club house by 6 p. m. Monday evening, officers announced.

The speaker has chosen "A South American's View of South America" for his topic next week. He has just returned from a trip through the important South American countries where he has made a personal survey of present conditions, and his talk contains vital information which he has obtained from discussion with outstanding leaders of Latin America.

Dussaq was born in the Argentine and educated in Europe. He is a graduate of the Sorbonne, and in addition to being an accomplished linguist and scholar he also won an international reputation for athletic versatality.

Activities of Social Clubs

ONE guest, Miss Mary Stahl, was present yesterday when Mrs. Mary Hill, Hedges street, entertained members of the Entre Nous club. After the business session five hundred was played, and Mrs. Rose Berry and Mrs. Nellie Phipps were the winners. Refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held with Miss Callie Mengert, South Adams street, but no date was set.

* * *

Two tables of bridge were in play last evening when members of the Friendly Eight club gathered at the home of Mrs. Kemp Oswalt, 578 West Fourth street, for a meeting. Mrs. Herman Wentz, Mrs. Opal Lindegger and Mrs. Robert Cook won the score prizes, and luncheon was served at the close of the games. Mrs. Albert Cook will have the meeting of Oct. 30 at her home on Bennett street.

ANNOUNCE PROGRAM FOR CURRENT SEASON

Mildred Monett assisted by Eileen Stout and Edna Dean will entertain March 10 when another guest speaker gives a program on flower arrangements, while Miss Pearl Danback will show pictures of England when Evelyn Miller, Frances Crunkilton and Hazel Vanderbilt entertain April 14.

The final meeting of the year will be an indoor picnic May 12 at the school for members and their families. Rosie Schwamberger and Mollie Riegel will be the hostesses.

Dorcas Society Gives Miss Nail Wedding Gift

A covered-dish dinner was served to members of the Dorcas Missionary society of the St. Luke's Lutheran church last night when members met at the church. Blue, pink and yellow appointments were used. Mrs. Lester Dye led the devotions, and Miss Louise Baer was in charge of the program.

The hostesses were Mrs. Frank M. Steckel, Miss Marguerite Koerper and Miss Edith Benson gave a talk on the Mormons. The group gave Miss Florence Nail a gift in honor of her approaching marriage to John L. Catlett. She and Mr. Catlett will be married Nov. 16. The next meeting will be held Nov. 20.

To Relieve Bad Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Swift Acting, and Saves Big Money. Easily Mixed.

You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, when you try this splendid recipe. It gives you about four times as much cough medicine for your money, and you'll find it truly wonderful, for real relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup and you have a full pint of medicine that will amaze you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This simple mixture takes right hold of a cough. For real results, you've never seen anything better. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Everything Went Round and Round

Greenwich resident says constipation made her feel bilious, nauseated, spots danced before her eyes, tongue was coated until Vendol gave a good cleaning out.

MRS. FLOYD B. McCLAIN, living on route 2, GREENWICH, OHIO, says, "There was hardly a day that I didn't feel bilious, upset, and my stomach was nauseated until I began taking Vendol, which gave my bowels the finest, most thorough cleansing I'd had in a long time, yet pleasant and satisfying; then those miserable feelings were relieved.

"When my constipation was extra bad it seemed like everything was going round and round; when I stooped over I'd have to steady myself, and dozens of little spots danced before my eyes. Most every morning my tongue was coated.

"I can surely recommend Vendol after the splendid relief it gave me, and believe it is worth everyone's while to give Vendol a trial."

Everyone suffering from liver ailments, headaches, dizzy spells, spots before the eyes, bad breath or coated tongue, cannot say these troubles are due to constipation, but if your troubles are definitely due to this annoying condition do not delay getting a bottle of Vendol and a box of the little Vendol laxative tablets and see for yourself how quickly you may get gratifying relief.

There is only one Vendol, and it comes in 3 sizes for your convenience. Larger bottles are the most economical. Sold at leading druggists, recommended especially by Central Drug Store, corner Main and 4th Streets.—Adv.

VIEWRE CLUB TO STUDY SEVEN WORLD WONDERS

Program Includes Holiday Programs, Guest Night, Dinners, Two Picnics; Mrs. Brunk Will Entertain Tomorrow.

TOMORROW the second meeting of the season will be held by members of the Viewre club when Mrs. Herman Brunk entertains, and Miss Grace Wilson and Miss Vera Smythe give the program. It was announced today that the program of the year will be a study of the seven wonders of the ancient world. Other activities for the season include a Thanksgiving program Nov. 15 to be given at the home of the Misses Josephine and Martha McFarland.

Mrs. A. Rust, jr., Mrs. Brunk and Mrs. G. W. Weller will have the program. A typical Christmas program will be held in December when Mrs. Sherman Wentz and Miss Rhea Doolittle entertain. Miss Smythe will arrange the Christmas story, and the group will sing carols and have a gift exchange.

For the first meeting of the new year Mrs. L. F. Rondel will entertain with a dinner, and Mrs. Hugh Rust and Mrs. Wentz will have the program, while Mrs. Rust will assist Miss Smythe in entertaining Feb. 21 when the club has a guest night. The program is in charge of Miss Martha McFarland, Miss Ruth McClellan and Miss Smythe with Mrs. A. Rust giving the talk on one of the seven wonders.

Hobbies will be the topic led by Mrs. Weller when Miss McClellan and Miss Wilson entertain in March, and Miss Doolittle will have the second paper. Mrs. Weller will entertain in April, and the program will be in charge of Mrs. Rondel and Miss McClellan.

The annual meeting will be a dinner May 16 with Miss Martha McFarland giving the program. Hostesses will be Mrs. Brunk, Mrs. Wentz and Mrs. Weller, social committee members. The 20 year old club will have two picnics, one in June and one in July, to close the season.

Officers for the current club year are Miss McClellan, president, and Mrs. Rondel, secretary-treasurer. The other committees include Miss Smythe, the Misses McFarland, and Mrs. A. Rust, program; Miss Doolittle and Miss Wilson, flowers, and Mrs. Hugh Rust, scrapbook.

Announce Engagement At Meeting of Club

The engagement of Miss Helen Long and Richard E. Pagani was announced last night by Mrs. Carl Daugherty, aunt of the bride-elect, at a meeting of the Jolly Times club at the home of Mrs. T. J. Brucato, North Main street yesterday. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Long, Woodland road, and Mr. Pagani is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Pagani, 197 Harker street.

Games were played and prizes won by Mrs. Lewis Davidson and Mrs. Clarence Long. Refreshments were served. Miss Virginia Micko was a guest. Miss Marceille Long, Woodland avenue, will be hostess for a Halloween party Oct. 30.

Holiday Marked By Marriage of Mansfield Man

Of interest to Mansfielders was the wedding of Miss Eileen Nuss and Floyd Wehinger at the Immaculate Conception church in Batkins last Saturday morning. Rev. E. G. Depenbrack read the nuptial mass before a large number of relatives and friends of the couple.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Nuss, of near Batkins, was attired in a white satin gown, fashioned with a fitted bodice, long sleeves and a full skirt ending in a long train. A halo of seed pearls and rhinestones held her finger-tip veil of Chantilly lace in place. Her only jewelry was a mother-of-pearl locket, a gift from the bridegroom, and she carried a colonial bouquet of gladioli and chrysanthemums.

Miss Madonna Nuss of Lima served as her sister's maid-of-honor, and she wore a peach taffeta gown, made similarly to the bride's. Her shoulder-length veil was of blue Chantilly lace, and she carried a colonial bouquet of peach gladioli and chrysanthemums, tied with blue satin streamers. She wore a gold cross necklace, which had been given to her by the bride.

Mr. Wehinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wehinger, 376 West Fifth street, chose James Wehinger of this city to be his best man. John Miner, also of Mansfield, and Jerome Nuss were the ushers.

A dinner was served to approximately 50 guests at noon, followed by a reception during the afternoon at the bride's home. After a short wedding trip, the couple will reside at 808 West Sugar street in Mt. Vernon.

Three Hostesses Fete Miss Lantz

Mrs. Sam Matthes, Miss Violet Matthes, and Mrs. Howard Allen, Benedict avenue, entertained at the latter's home last night in honor of Miss Esther Lantz, bride-elect of Harry Lytle. A shower of linen gifts was presented to the bride-to-be, and the hostesses gave her a bedspread.

Blue and yellow appointments were used, and a cellophane centerpiece in the form of a pompon was featured, with blue tapers and tiny Japanese parasols completing the setting. Mrs. Harry Lantz won a prize, and the winning group in a scavenger hunt which was conducted was also presented with a prize. Mrs. Robert Dirlam is entertaining tomorrow night for Miss Lantz.

The marriage will be an event of Oct. 26 with an open church ceremony at the Park Avenue Baptist church at 2:30 p. m.

Officers Pose With Founder of Group

Sorority Plans Annual Dance for Late November

A Founders' day Halloween party was held by members of Delta Theta chapter of Delta Theta Tau at Apple Lane Inn last night. Costume prizes were won by Miss Esther Dunham, Miss Margaret Black and Miss Dunham and Miss Edith Beck. The next meeting will be a business session Oct. 28.

Committees were announced for the annual Thanksgiving dance which will be held Nov. 23. They are as follows: Miss Black, Miss Sarah Catherine Wallace, Miss Doris Mann, tickets: Miss Lee Heim, Miss Helen Widders and Miss Helen Lorow, publicity; the Misses Mary Alice Hughes, Marjorie Dise, Betty Smythe and Beck, decorations; Mrs. Ritchie Bittenger, Mrs. Dwight McCullough and Miss Thelma Reed, orchestra; Miss Helen Bunn, Mrs. Lisle Jones and Mrs. Paul Snyder, program.

Rainbows Plan Future Events; Have Party

Arrangements for a mother-daughter banquet to be held Oct. 23 were made last night when members of the Rainbow Assembly for Girls met at K. of P. hall. The affair will be held at 6:30 p. m. at the St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church. A hay ride party will be an event of Nov. 16.

Special reports were given by Roberta Lemmley, Janice Epley, Aida Patterson and Jean Buell. The next meeting will be an event of Nov. 6. Following the meeting the girls had a Halloween party and scavenger hunt.

Mrs. Rogers Speaker at Newman Mothers Club

There were 35 members of the Newman Mothers club present yesterday when Mrs. Robert E. Rogers, school nurse, spoke. The room prize for the most mothers present went to Miss Sarah Catherine Wallace's class. Contests were conducted, and prizes won by Mrs Victor Alderson, Mrs. Walter Retug, Mrs. Conrad Reale. Halloween decorations were used when luncheon was served.

Hostesses were Mrs. Stephen Konves, Mrs. A. L. Kimes, Mrs. Samuel Laughlin and Mrs. William Miller. The next meeting will be held Nov. 20.

PLAN MEETING.

Plans for a 6 o'clock dinner to be served at the John Simpson Junior high school were made last night when Mrs. Ray Lindenbolt entertained members of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks Women's auxiliary at her home on Ridge road. The dinner will be the opening event for the district meeting of Northern Ohio to be held Oct. 26. Black and orange appointments were used when luncheon was served. The next meeting will be held Nov. 20 with Mrs. Charles Glasgow, 351 West Sixth street.

Opening Program Presented By Dental Clinic at Theater

The opening program of the joint book review-movie sponsored by the Dental Clinic of Mansfield was given yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of the Ohio theater when Katherine C. Bang, Cleveland, gave a review of "Moontide" by Willard Robertson. The current picture, "Pride and Prejudice," was shown immediately following the review.

Combining a commentary on the author and the book with a resume of the plot, Mrs. Bang wove a complete and colorful picture of the novel for her audience which almost completely filled the main floor of the theater.

The novel, an unusual one, as the reviewer pointed out, deals with two characters who are known to the reader as The Swede and Ada. It tells of the experiences which come to them in a period of 12 days on a small boat in the San Pedro harbor from the time the Swede rescues Ada from attempted suicide until she dies in a struggle with a minor character.

Two distinct philosophies are shown in the book—that of the Swede who feels that little devils direct the whole course of life, and that of an obscure fisherman who follows an escapist urge.

The next review will be presented Oct. 30 when Dr. Joseph Remenyi, Cleveland, reviews "The Beloved Returns," by Thomas Mann. The doors of the theater will be open at 12:45 p. m. and the movie will begin at 1 p. m. Dr. Remenyi's review will be given at the close of the bill at about 2:30 p. m.

Mrs. Ward Ingraham, president of the Clinic, spoke briefly preceding the program, and introduced Mrs. Bang. Tickets for the remaining three reviews will be available from members of the ticket committee headed by Mrs. James Brown. Proceeds from tickets sold by the clinic and its representatives go to provide dental care for indigent children. Mrs. Warren Fort has served as general chairman.

Moose Women Install Several New Officers

A regular session with Mrs. Ethel Ferrell, senior regent, presiding, was held last night by the Women of the Moose at the hall. There were 38 present, and Mrs. Pauline Shively was installed as guide, while Catherine Cheny was installed as assistant guide and Idella Eberhart as sentinel.

Moosehart day Oct. 30 will be the occasion for the initiation of a class. The meeting will be open to the public, and a program will follow with Mrs. Elsie Hart, chairman of the alumni committee, in charge.

HOSTESS TO CLUB.

There were 15 members of the Ruth-Naomi Bible club present for a meeting at the home of Mrs. V. R. Brown, 234 Rae avenue, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. G. L. Cairns read the devotions, and Mrs. R. E. Race conducted the lesson. The next meeting, Nov. 6, will be with Mrs. Charles Helt, 386 West Fourth street.

TEACHERS-WIVES HAVE ANNIVERSARY PARTY

THERE were 46 members and eight guests of the Teachers-Wives club present last evening at the Johnny Appleseed Junior high school when the organization celebrated its 20th anniversary with Mrs. H. H. Helter, former superintendent's wife who lived here for 22 years before moving to Kent 11 years ago, organizer of the club, as a special guest. Mrs. W. L. Miller, wife of the superintendent of schools, presented her with a gift from the club.

Additional guests were Mrs. J Leo Hartmann, Mrs. Rhetta Bonar, both charter members, and Mrs. C. H. Frechafer, Mrs. Boyd Robinson and Mrs. Walter Kramer, all wives of former teachers in the system. Other charter members present were Mrs. V. D. Coe, Mrs. F. E. Elder, Mrs. J. Merton Holcombe, Mrs. Harry Hostettler and Mrs. V. C. Ketner.

Mrs. Elder, president, introduced Mrs. Parker O'Brien, Mrs. Charles McClure and Mrs. Hobart Lime, new members. Mrs. Coe was in charge of the program, and Mrs. Hartman gave a history of the club after which Mrs. E. N. Cooper played several piano selections.

Miss Virginia Jenkins and Richard Oram presented a one-act play, "The Artists." Yellow and white table appointments were used, and each guest and charter member was presented with a corsage. The next meeting will be a musicale Nov. 20 at the home of Mrs. Nelson Neff, 619 Harter street.

Friends Honor Bride at Shower

Mrs. William Terry feted her sister-in-law, Mrs. W. Lee Heald, with a post-nuptial party Tuesday evening at her home, 120 West Third street. The honoree was formerly Miss Ellen Terry. During the evening, the guests played bridge, pinochle and made a bride's book.

Mrs. Gordon Colby and Mrs. Kenneth Cartnal were recipients of the bridge prizes, and Miss Martha Canterbury won the pinochle award. Miss Vivian Aplin, Miss Ann Forrest and Mrs. Meta Pearl Welty were awarded prizes for the bride's book.

Miniature bouquets decorated the small tables when refreshments were served. Mrs. Heald received a showed of miscellaneous gifts from the guests, and the hostess gave her a gift of furniture in honor of the occasion.

Draft Puts Marriages On Increase

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Girls who have been worrying about bringing dilatory suitors to the point need worry no longer — the draft is attending to that.

Next winter, after Jan. 1, I expect to get fewer wails concerning the chair-warmer in his accustomed place in the most comfortable armchair whiling away the winter evenings. Either he will be out drilling and being toughened by his Uncle Sam, inured to long marches and discipline, or as a married man he will have succeeded in obtaining exemptions from the provisions of the Burke-Wadsworth bill for compulsory selective military training.

The average young man who does not lust after the glories of war feels that his chances of escaping conscription are better as a benedict than as a dyed-in-the-wool bachelor. At any rate, marriage license bureaus all over these United States are doing a land-office business, keeping open extra hours and closing the doors on long gueues of people waiting patiently, sometimes in the rain. In Brooklyn, a day or two ago, the first couple arrived at the license bureau at 6.30 a. m., though the office did not open until nine. And 350 couples were waiting in line when the six clerks went into action.

In Washington, D. C., the number of licenses granted has doubled in the month of August, 1940 as compared to August of last year.

Officials throughout the country are genuinely puzzled at the rush because, as frequently stated, the Burke-Wadsworth selected service bill would not necessarily exempt newly married men. Throughout Vriginia and other Southern states where a Wassermann test is demanded for all persons desiring to marry, the duties of the bureau clerk have been tremendously complicated. Still, in spite of the complications and the extra expense involved for the three days grace, marriages have gone forward.

Some of the applicants for licenses were very frank in admitting that they were obtaining marriage licenses in the hope of evading conscription. Several prudent ones interviewed in Maryland admitted they were holding their licenses for a while to see whether or not the draft bill would be passed.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Oct. 18.

UNCERTAINTY and conflict may manifest in business affairs on this day, judging by the contradictory astral influences. Things seem to pull in opposite directions, with very promising and expansive tendencies decisively hampered, obstructed, delayed, drawn to limitation or inertia. This may also be attended by treachery, betrayal, misrepresentation and fraud. Rash or impetuous moves or quarrels will not save the situation, but a feminine intervention might.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves plunged in a year of perplexities and problems, with business under contradictory influence, being forcefully drawn between two quite different trends. Expensive and productive prospects may also come up against a stone wall of delays, limitations, obstacles and frustrations. These perhaps due to extravagance, fraud, trickery, litigation, or some phase of misrepresentation or betrayal. Reprisals in quarrels, rashness, impetuosity or want of control but complicate matters. The social, domestic and affectional interests being well aspected may encourage sympathy or financial aid from such sources.

A child born on this day while being gracious, kindly, sympathetic and well-intentioned may have certain anti-social qualities

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passage with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Then," he resumed, "I turned my whole attention to finding out whether she had the stamina to be a real trouper. As I told you at that conference, I never should have dared to do what I did, if I had not known that you"—he looked at me with the glint of a smile, though a somber one—"with your resourcefulness and your great acting talent"—he boved flamboyantly — "would groom her in a real rendition of her role. But I think you will agree that it was the most grueling test to which a neophyte could be subjected. That she came through it with such flying colors is a matter of great pride and satisfaction to me, and it should be to you also."

"I am afraid I am thinking of it in terms of the mental anguish which Mary endured while the test was going on," I said

"But the experience was so valuable to her," he said, and then he fell silent, and I saw that his fingers were again gripping the chair arms until the flesh showed white around the nails.

"Are you satisfied with my explanation about my treatment of Mary?" he asked Lillian.

"Perfectly," she said "I'm not saying I agree with your methods, but I certainly acquit you of bad faith or sinister motives."

"And you?" He turned to me as he had when he had asked me if I believed him to be speaking the truth.

"Again I agree with Lillian," I told him, "although I cannot help but think you caused Mary much needless suffering."

"Mary—and you both—will tell me sometime that her pain was needful, not needless," he said with such conviction in his voice that I felt my own tenets shaken.

"And now," he went on, with something in his voice which told me the climax of his story was coming, 'I must tell you what has brought me here today, the story I have just told your father, the story which, God help me! I shall have to relate to Olga."

Without Phil's seeing her, Lillian quickly turned her thumbs downward, and I closed my eyes twice to let her know I recognized her signal which meant—"This is not so good. We may have to get busy."

"A few minutes ago, I said that after the episode of Mary's masked dancing, with her rescue from Jack Leslie by Noel, and Noel's ever-increasing affection for her, I went quite mad, and have little recollection of what I did during the subsequent year. But I do remember one thing. You know of course that Hugh Grantland sent Leslie out of the country, spared him long imprisonment on condition that he never return to the United States.

He paused, and we both nodded a breathless assent.

"Have you never wondered how, in view of Hugh's capabilities, Leslie managed to get back here?"

"We have, frequently," Lillian said dryly, and at her tone, he sent us a startled, attentive glance.

"You mean you suspected my agency?" he asked with pique and surprise in his tone.

"We did you that honor," she answered, with a flippancy that I knew was studied to ease the situation.

"Your deduction was correct," he said after a pause. "Leslie got word to me from overseas, reminding me of the promise I had given to aid him in any difficulty because he had cleared Noel of the charge which had resulted in my son's expulsion from college.

"Keeping my given word is a fetish with me," he went on after another pause, as if he were seeking the best words of exculpation he could find. 'I never have regretted it before But I wish I had left Jack Leslie to die in banishment rather than to have brought him back, possibly to destroy my whole life, my new-found hope of happiness!"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

A NECESSARY WEAPON

Any player who selects No Trumps as the declaration for his grand slam contracts had better know the structure of squeeze plays. Such maneuvers are as necessary to some of these contracts as is a bayonet or trench knife to the doughboy who expects to find himself engaged in hand-to-hand fighting. Many a grand slam can be made at suit by the simple process of ruffing a trick or two, whereas the same hand may furnish an impossibility at No Trumps except by means of some type of squeeze.

	♠ A 9 5 3 ♥ A 6 ♦ 7 ♣ A K Q 8 4 2
♠ J 10 8 7 ♥ Q 9 3 2 ♦ 10 9 8 ♣ 7 3	W. E. N. S.	♠ 6 4 2 ♥ J 10 5 ♦ K Q 5 4 3 2 ♣ 6
	♠ K Q ♥ K 8 7 4 ♦ A J 6 ♣ J 10 9 5

(Dealer. West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♣	1 ♦	1 NT
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	4 ♣
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5 ♠	Pass	5 NT
Pass	6 ♦	Pass	7 NT

That bidding developed at two tables of a duplicate. One of these two Souths got top score, the other bottom, as every other pair bid and made 7-Clubs. At these two tables, West figured that South was prepared for a lead of the diamond suit bid by East, so chose the 2 of the unbid hearts. At one table South played low on this from dummy, letting it run up to his hand, the 10 forcing his K. He struggled hard to build a squeeze of some kind, but failed, so took only twelve tricks and was down one.

At the other table, the declarer counted up twelve tricks, so figured how to build a squeeze before he played a solitary card. First he reckoned that East would have to guard the diamond J, that with length there he probably was short enough in spades so that West would have to protect the third round of hearts.

So he took the first trick with the heart A, then the spade K and Q, the diamond A, five club tricks, the spade A—completing a double Vienna Coup preparation—and then the last club. He also held in dummy the spade 9 and heart 6. East had to keep his diamond K to guard against the J, so tossed a heart. South then threw off his diamond J. This put it up to West. If he threw the spade J, the dummy's 9 and heart K would be the last two tricks. So he discarded his heart 9. Then the heart 6 to the K dropped his Q and the heart 8 was the deciding trick.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ K 8 5 ♥ 4 3 ♦ A 9 7 6 4 ♣ K 10 4
♠ Q J 9 ♥ K Q 10 7 5 ♦ K 10 ♣ Q 7 2	W. E. N. S.	♠ A 10 4 2 ♥ 8 6 ♦ 8 3 2 ♣ 8 6 5 3
	♠ 7 6 3 ♥ A J 9 2 ♦ Q J 5 ♣ A J 9

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

If West, who had opened the bidding with 1-Heart, leads the heart K, how should South plan his play for 3-No Trumps?

Hoover Says Nation Made Safe From Spies, Saboteurs

FBI HEAD SAYS FIFTH COLUMN THREAT ENDED

Points to Nation-wide Work of All Law Enforcement Agencies, Citizens.

By J. EDGAR HOOVER
(Director Federal Bureau of Investigation)

WASHINGTON—The nation is safer from spies and saboteurs today than ever before.

There has been a negligible amount of sabotage in the second world war in contrast to a similar period in the first world war.

This situation ...ts largely because law enforcement throughout every municipality, county, state and the nation is far better prepared to deal with these matters than at any time in the past.

Protection of the internal security is not a single-handed job. Neither the FBI nor the naval intelligence, nor any other single unit of law enforcement can do that job alone.

America has become the battleground for foreign agents, and these forces can be met only by a nation-wide offensive of all law enforcement, backed by the co-operation of each and every citizen.

The ...eeting of present-day challenges has been anticipated, and for years a carefully planned program has been quietly perfected to weld this great net to ensnare foreign subversive agents. The state and treasury departments, the military and naval intelligence services, and the federal bureau of investigation meet weekly to pool their assets and to coordinate their activities in matters dealing with the internal security and defense of the United States.

In addition, special agents in charge of the 53 field offices of the federal bureau of investigation throughout the United States, its territories and possessions, have through conferences with the ranking law enforcement officials in their respective areas, established a nation-wide plan of co-ordination of protective measures participated in by federal, state and local police.

A most important part of the international defense system initiated by the federal bureau of investigation is that performed by 500 graduates of the national police academy.

Over a period of five years practically every community of the country has sent at least one ranking law enforcement official to this academy operated by the federal bureau of investigation to be trained not only in improving law enforcement technique, but especially in ways to cope with national defense matters in time of any great emergency.

The results of this program are now crystallizing into every-day actualities in that these 500 graduates are serving as important liaison officers between the federal bureau of investigation and local law enforcement agencies in effecting a smooth-running operation of the law enforcement program for the internal security of the country.

Admiral Declares Navy Prepared to Take War Offense

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, U. S. navy, retired, says the U. S. navy will take the "offensive" immediately in the event the U. S. becomes embroiled in war.

He told a lecture audience last night at Ohio State university that the fleet was ready and able to take the initiative and run down the enemy wherever it be.

The former commander of the Asiatic fleet did not think the U. S. will ever send troops to Europe or the Far East but he spoke on the assumption this country will be drawn into conflict against the German-Italian-Japanese Axis.

EXPECT 200 AT MEETING HERE

Mansfield-Shelby Foreman's Club To Meet At Westinghouse.

More than 200 members of the Mansfield-Shelby Foreman's club are expected to attend the club's first dinner meeting of the year at the Westinghouse auditorium Monday at 6:30, E. C. Geiger, president, announced today.

Bob Richards and his Westinghouse orchestra will entertain the group at the meeting. Rev. B. F. Haglesharger, pastor of the First Christian church of Mansfield will deliver the invocation address, Geiger said today.

WEDDING ANNOUNCED

SHELBY — Announcement today was made by Mrs. Albred W. Fetter of Tiro, of the marriage of her daughter, Mary, to Walter L. Payne, son of Mrs. George Payne, of Shelby, which took place May 5 at Ripley, N. Y.

Shortage of Doctors Worries Ohio Guard

Gov. John W. Bricker contributed a bit of humor yesterday in the crowded lounge car of the Willkie special train on the way from Mansfield to Marion. Edging his way through the car behind Congressman L. L. Marshall of Cleveland, the governor said: "Why don't you run interference for me here, L. L.; you're just the blocking type." Marshall is not as tall as the governor, but he's considerably wider.

A landscape done by a Mansfield boy has won praise from critics who viewed the exhibition at the Cleveland College of Arts. He is George Biddle, jr., a senior at the college who has taken to art in a serious way and whose work indicates that he has a career ahead of him as an artist. One Cleveland critic said the picture was a "really important landscape imbued with the spirit of Ohio." The picture was painted from the top of the hill at the east side of Mifflin and looks down over the winding road and the little church and the lakes that lay to the north of the road. The exhibition, which is open to the public, continues through next week.

Theodore C. Shaeffer, former organist at the First Congregational church in Mansfield and son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Shaeffer of Galion, presented the first of a series of monthly recitals in Washington, D. C., Wednesday evening and was highly commended by critics of Washington newspapers. Mrs. Shaeffer also received special recognition this month when she was appointed associate editor of Reader's Digest, monthly magazine. Beginning with the November issue her name, Marjorie D. Shaeffer, will appear on the masthead of the publication.

Although there were no figures available today as to how many ducks were purchased by duck hunters at meat markets on the opening day of shooting yesterday, the rumor is that there were quite a few sold. Fifty-three hunters shouldered their guns and tried their luck at Charles Mill dam yesterday, but according to County Game Protector C. I. Kimmel only 24 ducks were bagged all day. A few optimistic hunters who told friends to drop around for a duck dinner had to solve their problem at the meat market, it was rumored.

BUILD 4 HOMES

Building Permits Totaling $37,650 Issued By City.

October building operations were boosted $37,650 today with the issuance at City Hall of permits for construction of four new residences, one of them a four-family apartment.

Largest of the permits went to Atty. George W. Biddle, who plans construction of a four-family apartment, valued at $16,500 at 585 West Third street.

A permit was issued to Frank Beymer, 118 South Main street, who will build a $12,000 home at 650 Dickson parkway. Frank Gadfield received a permit to build a $4,650 home at 157 Grover street, and Laser and Walker, contractors, were issued a permit for construction of a $4,500 residence at 577 South Diamond street.

GEM SALESMAN BEATEN, ROBBED

Two Young Bandits Grab Bag of Diamonds and Rings Worth Over $60,000.

(By International News Service)

FORT WAYNE, Ind. — A city-wide police search was under way today for two youthful bandits who last night slugged Sol Roseman, 60, of New York City, and robbed him of a bag containing cut diamonds and rings valued at from $60,000 to $75,000.

Roseman, representative of a New York jewelry firm, was on his way to a bus station when attacked. One bandit grabbed for his bag, beating him over the head with the butt of his revolver. The other struck the salesman on the hands, forcing him to loose his grip on the satchel.

The assault was so sudden, Roseman said later, that he had no chance to release a hidden lever which would have discharged a stream of tear gas from the bag, at the same time ringing a bell.

The robbers escaped in a waiting automobile.

CROSSING DEATH

YOUNGSTOWN — (U.P.) — Officials today attributed the railroad crossing death of John Pouroznik, 65, to his disregard of the warning signal of Leo Ford, flagman. Pouroznik was killed late yesterday when his truck was struck by a locomotive of the Erie railroad.

DAVEY BLAMES PARTISANSHIP FOR SILENT MT. VERNON MIKE

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Former Gov. Martin L. Davey, Democratic candidate for a third term, carried his campaign into northern Ohio today after blaming "mean, narrow partisanship" for the sudden deadening of a microphone into which he was speaking on the courthouse steps at Mount Vernon yesterday.

"I don't believe votes are made by discourtesy," Davey told his Mount Vernon audience, adding that he had "never seen such a bitter feeling" as that which he said prompted the microphone silencing.

He said he believed the current was turned off inside the court house.

Governor Bricker, who spent yesterday touring Ohio with Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential candidate, was to appear at Washington Court House, Hillsboro, Franklin and Wilmington.

At Akron, Maj. Norman A. Imrie of Columbus last night asserted that "any president who spent the billions that President Roosevelt has and still kept the country in its defense underwear, would be a faithless trustee of the people's property."

PROGRAM SET

Mansfield Moose Lodge To Institute Willard Unit.

Institution exercises and installation of officers for 50 members of the recently organized Loyal Order of Moose lodge at nearby Willard will be held at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Mansfield Moose home, North Walnut street.

RESIGNATIONS AND PHYSICAL DEFECTS CAUSE

Gen. Beightler Reports O. N. G. Needs at Least 30 More Medical Officers.

(By International News Service)

"We are short at least 30 medical officers," Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler asserted, "and it causes me grave concern. I dislike the task of transporting 10,500 troops without adquate medical facilities."

The shortage was occasioned, the 37th division commander said, by resignations and physical disqualifications. An attempt will be made to fill the roster with reserve officers.

Maj. Gens. Beightler and Campbell Hodges, commander of the fifth corps area of the regular army, were to confer this afternoon with Maj. Gen. Robert S. McNair, chief of staff of the army general headquarters who is in charge of the training of all federal troops. The trio of high-ranking officers will discuss the training of the Ohio guard after it arrives at Camp Shelby.

Following the conference, General Beightler will wind up his affairs in Columbus and leave for Camp Shelby Saturday at 1 a. m. Several members of his staff, however, will remain behind to "gather up the loose ends," the general said. So far, everything has proceeded according to plan.

The first contingent of advance troops, totaling 145 officers and men, who left by motor yesterday, are now at Lawrenceburg, Tenn. About 375 other officers and men, who are to aid in preparing the campsite, were to leave today.

The units, together with their point of embarkation, were:

112th QM Reg., from Mt. Vernon and Kent; 145th and 148 Inf., from Toledo; 135th Fa, from Canton; 134th Fa from Bucyrus, 112th medical ,and the 112th engineers, from Cleveland.

Physical examinations for all enlisted men will be completed today at the 18 medical assembly points in the state, division spokesmen said. This will do away with the necessity of giving the men examinations on arrival at Camp Shelby.

ILLNESS FATAL

Mrs. Catherine Cook, 75, Dies at Home; Rites Saturday.

Mrs. Catherine Elizabeth Cook, 75, of 542 North Bowman street, died at the home Wednesday evening after a lingering illness.

Mrs. Cook was born in Germany, Sept. 18, 1865 and came to this country in 1867. She has been a resident of Mansfield since 1907. Mrs. Cook was a member of the German Lutheran church of Galion.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Earnest Adams and Miss Mabel Cook of Mansfield; a son, Lorrian A. Cook, of Atlanta, Ga., and a grandson, Lester J. Adams of Mansfield.

The body was removed to the Finefrock funeral home where services will be at 1 p. m. Saturday in charge of Rev. Grover E. Swoyer of the First Lutheran church. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

DEATH CLAIMS ALTHA M. LUST

Illness of 12 Years Fatal To Bucyrus Woman.

BUCYRUS — Miss Altha M. Lust, 48, operator of a Bucyrus millinery for a number of years, died yesterday in Crestline hospital after an illness of 12 years.

Born in Crawford county April 29, 1892, she is survived by three brothers and five sisters. She was a member of the First Methodist church and Eastern Star.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at the Wise funeral home here. Burial will be made in Oakwood cemetery.

DIES AT HOME

Elmer Hatch, 65, died yesterday at the Richland county home. He was a native of Plain City, O., and had lived in Mansfield for the past 17 years.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Harry Webster, Dayton; a stepson, Carl Osborn, New Castle, Ind., and three sisters.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Friday at the Jones Memorial. Rev. J. H. Ellington will officiate and burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

What Broadway Needs.

Is a thousand Tommy Lymans to sing torch tunes to all those who are unlucky in love. . . . Drive-in hamburger joints: a la Hollywood. . . . A musical score by Vincent Youmans. . . . A club car on the Eighth avenue subway.

Another fad like double-talk to distract the boys in Lindy's. . . . A play by Noel Coward, the historian of gleaming decadence. . . . Prettier names for her streets, like Half Moon street in London. . . . A chorine who, when she says "daddy," means her father. . . .

A reunion of Clayton, Jackson and Durante wrecking one of the midnight places. . . . Clam chowder made the New England way, with milk. . . . John Kieran in the Times Square information booth. . . . A new set of offices for the Variety muggs. . . . A good melodrama.

* * *

A poet-laureate like Ogden Nash. Bright-light trash by Ogden Nash. . . . Another showgirl glamor-trio like Christine Maple, Virginia Bruce and Claire Dodd when they broke hearts across a set of Ziegfeld's nicest footlights.

More performers who love Broadway so much they don't consider a role in a play just an audition for Hollywood. . . . A new Ruth Etting singing a new "Ten Cents a Dance."

More Dorothy Draper decorated restaurants like the upstairs dining room in Hampshire house, which is so pretty it takes your mind off your vittles. . . . A return to the Will Rogers attitude in the theater. He always gave the impression that it was fun, not business.

* * *

Another "New Moon" . . . Another spine-tingling mystery comedy like "The Bat" or "The Cat and The Canary" with hands coming through wall panels, shrieks in the dark, and maniacs chasing a screaming heroine. . . .

More performers with the great talent of Alec Templeton . . . An invention to get you to the theater on a rainy night when traveling by cab is like traveling by tortoise except that the cab has a radio . . . A beau for Broadway Rose. . . .

Less chatter about war, conscription, and the elections . . . A dance combination like Fred and Adele Astaire . . . One night a week that has no nightclub curfew . . . Katherine Hepburn stalking through Shubert Alley.

* * *

A sound-proof arena where those Columbus Circle crackpots can can hear themselves — which is punishment enough! . . . More short stories by Damon Runyon, the Lord Byron of Broadway . . . Another musical comedy dancer with taste, grace and beauty of Marilyn Miller. . .

A law making it a felony for an actor to do more than three double-takes in one performance . . . A guide service in the night clubs for pointing out George Jean Nathan, Orson Welles, Monty Woolley, and Betty Grable to the visiting fireman . . .

* * *

Several Victor Moores . . . A permanent hat rack in Times Square for the free lance agents, writers, and publicity lads who carry their ofifces in their chapeatux . . Scales that talk back to you when you doubt the figures . . . A spender like Diamond Jim Brady. . . .

A kinder reception to the kids who flock to the Main Stem looking for a place in the theater. The only places that cater to them are the Penn-Astor and Walgreen drug stores. . . .

A new gag drink to take the place of the Zombie. Maybe the "Dew Drop Dead" which will be featured at the Fairway Yacht Club . . . A musical comedy for Bob Hope, the air's zippiest comic . . . A few more cab drivers like Louis, the 45th Street hackie . . .

More restaurants like Frankie and Johnny's where a girl can wade into a sirloin steak without a running comment from dieting and envious females . . . Nice fellows like Sam Levene.

* * *

Some way of making buses float in mid-air so they won't block traffic . . . Prettier uniforms—powder blue, maybe—on the gendarmes . . . A revival of "Linger Longer Letty" with Charlotte Greenwood . . . Parades for all the big musicals that hit town, just like the parades circuses have in small towns. . . .

A Hall of Fame walk to replace the picket fence in the middle of Times Square—where the street could honor such Broadway greats as Lillian Russell, Sarah Bernhardt, John Drew, Florenz Ziegfeld and John Bunny. . . .

More drama critics with the verbal spice of John Anderson . . . Longer red lights so pedestrians don't have to gallop madly across Broadway or get stuck in the middle of the street at risk of life and limb. . . .

A copy maker of Guy Loomis' proportions. According to the old settlers in the amusement district, when the big Indian strolled into a night club a decade ago the place was "off the nut" for the evening—and they say that his idea of a lonely table was one with only fifteen chorus girls around it. . .

* * *

More Hollywood visitors like George Raft . . . A miniature golf course like the one that used to be behind the Roxy . . . A fight announcer in the Stork and El Morocco to cut in on radio programs and broadcast a blow-by-blow or cup-by-cup description of cafe society slugging matches. . . .

More footlight Cinderellas like Betty Allen and Carol Bruce . . . An amusement park closer than Conely Island . . . Kyra and her snake act. Or do you think there are too many snakes on Broadway now?

* * *

Mrs. Gil Dolson, Glenleigh Farm, telling friends that her mother, Mrs. C. R. Lininger, Detroit, who is visiting her, couldn't find a single hat to please her in all Detroit, but found two in Mansfield an hour after ...rriving down town. Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants please note. . . .

* * *

* * *

Dan Reese playing the role of footman and pronouncing bath "bawth" at a Community Players rehearsal. . . . Henrietta Frank taking registrations at the precinct polling place near her home.

* * *

Rodney Chandler walking out Park avenue on registration day with a big badge on his chest reading: "I Want to Be a Captain!" . . . Martha King celebrating her birthday yesterday by working in the Book Shop.

* * *

Crowding into the theater to attend the first Dental Clinic book review yesterday afternoon: Mrs. John C. Stout, Mrs. Karl T. Langacher, Mrs. Frank A. Burger, Mrs. V. A. Lodde. . . . Mrs. Howard Wenning.

* * *

Glenn Miller walking around town listening to a portable radio he was carrying in his hand. . . . Patrolman D. H. Cole sporting a new five-year service star.

Cornell Tops Nation's Football Ground and Air Gainers

Poll Shows Today

Ithacans Move Up From Second Place In AP Weekly Vote.

SEATTLE — (AP)—Statistics today bore out the sports writers' choice of Cornell as the nation's number one football team in this week's Associated Press grid poll.

* * *

The Ithacans moved up from second to first place as the country's leading eleven in total offense—gains rushing and passing—figures released by the American Football Statistics Bureau disclosed.

* * *

In thumping Colgate, 34-0, and Army 45-0, Cornell, in 126 plays, gained 357 yards rushing and 507 in the air for a total of 864 yards, or an average of 432 yards per game—the figure by which the bureau ranks the teams.

The Cornell average for yards per game through the air was a phenomenal 253.5, or 61.5 yards ahead of second place Illinois.

Mississippi and Detroit, on statistics available for three games each, tied for second place in total offense with marks of 321.7. Lafayette in three games averaged 389 and Drake, after losing to Kansas last week, dropped from first to fifth with 371.7. Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Navy, Creighton and Georgia round out the first ten, with figures on Georgia's 28-14 loss to Mississippi last week still unavailable.

* * *

Illinois, which also was second last week, gained 192 yards through the air per game, followed by Missouri, 185.7; Marquette, a newcomer to the upper bracket, 169.5; Indiana, which dropped from third, 144.5, and Oklahoma, which rose from tenth, 141.5. Drake, Texas A. & M., New York university, Arizona and Texas followed.

* * *

The week's ground-gaining leader was Lafayette, which jarred the experts a couple of weeks ago by defeating N. Y. U. In three games Lafayete gained 1,025 yards for a 341.7 average per game. Creighton, first last week, dropped to second after being humbled 32-0 by Tulsa, with a mark of 328.

Battle for Junior High Gridiron Championship

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — Extra — Mickey Cochrane definitely is interested in that Cleveland job "if they decide to change managers." . . . One Ohio paper said Northwestern showed Ohio State more fundamental football in one hour than the Buckeyes had absorbed in 40 practices. Wow! . . . Where did Pat Comiskey lose his right hand sleep producer? He bounced 'em off old Henry Cooper's jaw for ten rounds the other night and didn't dent it.

* * *

If anyone had an idea Dr. John Bain Sutherland wouldn't do all right in the pro game, let him perish the thought. . . . They're blaming the wrong guy for starting that yarn that this is Tom Stidham's last year at Oklahoma.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

GET TOGETHER, GENTS.

Headline in one N. Y. paper today said: "Yale alumni back Miller in grid blast." Another said: "Yale alumni up in arms over new football policy." . . . Horton Smith and Jimmy Thomson are among the golf stars tuning up at Pinehurst for the winter tour.

BULLIES EDGE CHIEFS 7-3, TAKE LEAGUE LEAD

(By Associated Press)

The Bullies came from behind to score a touchdown and beat the Milwaukee Chiefs, 7 to 3, in the cold and fog at Columbus. Joe Williams' 40-yard run to the goal line in the second period provided the winning margin. In the opening period, Bob Eckl kicked a field goal for the Chiefs.

STEVE O'NEILL SIGNS AS TIGER COACH FOR 1941

DETROIT—(INS)—The American league champion Detroit Tigers have begun building for the 1941 baseball season today with the signing as a coach of Steve O'Neill, manager for the last three seasons of the Buffalo club in the International league and former pilot of the Cleveland Indians.

O'Neill will replace Ralph (Red) Kress, who was released last week to become manager of the St. Paul American association club.

Future Mansfield Tygers Will Perform Friday Night

FUTURE Mansfield high football players will take over the stage on the Mansfield sports front at 8 p. m. Friday night at Stadium field.

* * *

* * *

* * *

Appleseed, a small but speedy machine, has two impressive victories dangling from its belt. Cameron's club beat the Madison Reserves, 12 to 0, and walloped the Butler Junior high team, 43 to 0.

* * *

Mentor Bob DeHaven is not so sure how his proteges will work under pressure for the club has had just one test—an early season tilt with the Madison Freshmen.

Third Day for Racing Event

COLUMBUS, O. — (AP) — Indian summer circuit harness racing entries go into the third day of their program at the state fairgrounds today with a new speed mark at which to aim.

* * *

* * *

Javadale won the first two heats in the six class trot, easily outdistancing Peter Astra, 1939 Hambletonian winner. It made the third $2,000 purse in as many weeks for the entry of Ed M. Stout of Pontiac, Mich.

ZENGARAS OUTPOINTED

DUDLEY NAMED PRESIDENT OF LOUISVILLE COLONELS

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(INS)—Bruce Dudley, executive manager of the Louisville Colonels, today became president of the American Association baseball club.

Tom Yawkey, owner of the Boston Red Sox who already owned a third of the Colonels, announced the appointment as he purchased the remaining two-thirds of the club stock from Donie Bush, ex-major leaguer, and Frank McKinney, Indianapolis banker.

PLAYS SHILOH TEAM

North Fairfield high's six-man football team invades Shiloh high to meet the Drummer Boys in a game at 3:30 p. m. Friday. The Shiloh outfit will be seeking their fourth win in five starts this season.

Geiger Paces Keglers In League Matches

SMACKING the pins at a sensational 253 clip in the opening game, Harold Geiger collected a nifty 658 total to set the individual pace at the Meder Recreation alleys last night.

* * *

Seven other keglers came in over the 600 total, but Farrell Hipp was the only one to come close to Geiger's score. Hipp, bowling with the Bissman team in the City Class A league had a 637, which was featured by a 219 game.

* * *

Geiger fell to 179 in the middle game and then reached a 226 as he led the Appliance team to three wins over Refrigeration Machine club in the Westinghouse Electric Class A league.

Two other bowlers aided the Bissman team with 600 totals. Dale Cleckner scored a 628 and John Leppo had a 608.

Tennessee Is Favored Club

Alabama Team Has Not Been Tested This Season.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — (AP) — Tennessee's powerful football team, pointing toward a third southeastern conference title, today ruled a heavy favorite over untested Alabama in their annual gridiron classic at Birmingham Saturday.

* * *

These Alabama-Tennessee scraps have given Dixie its fiercest grid play for more than a decade now, and it has become an axiom in southern football that the winner is title bound.

* * *

Alabama supporters are chary of predicting a crimson victory. They point to the fact that triple-threat Jimmy Nelson, despite an 88-yard runback of an intercepted pass against Howard in his only 1940 appearance, hasn't yet tested a shoulder injured in pre-season practice.

* * *

* * *

The volunteers, on the other hand, have swept over all opposition, handling highly-rated Duke with the same ease they mauled lesser foes.

State, Vols Picked

Ferguson Also Names Tulane, Georgia Tech in Tilts This Week.

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK — (UP) — Taking the numbers out of a hat in an attempt to pick the winners of the toughest football games this week-end:

SOUTH.

Tennessee over Alabama—In what probably will be the game of the day. Georgia Tech over Vanderbilt—Bouncing back from defeat at the hands of Notre Dame. North Carolina over North Carolina State—By two touchdowns. Tulane over Rice—The Green Wave finally rolls for the upset of the South. Mississippi over Duquesne—But closer than it looks.

* * *

Ohio State over Minnesota—The Scarlet Scourge will be plenty mad over that Northwestern licking.

* * *

Michigan over Illinois—Harmon is the margin. Missouri over Iowa State—By a touchdown or maybe two. Notre Dame over Carnegie Tech—Easy does it. Oklahoma over Kansas State—By a thin whisper. Northwestern over Wisconsin—Safe but not a cinch.

Duke over Colgate—A good team comes into its own. Columbia over Georgia—In a wild, close game. Cornell over Syracuse—Write your own ticket on this one. Fordham over Pittsburgh—But this one may surprise you. Pennsylvania over Princeton—In the top game of the East. Harvard over Army—The Soldiers are still groggy from that shellacking by Cornell. Dartmouth over Yale—Ho hum.

* * *

SOUTHWEST.

Villanova over Baylor—The East sends a tough little team to Dixie. Southern Methodist over Auburn—And not too tough. Texas A. & M. over Texas Christian—Rolling on toward another undefeated season.

* * *

COMMITTEE STUDIES U. S. ENTRY IN 1942 OLYMPICS

NEW YORK—(INS)—Members of the American Olympic committee today were studying the question of whether or not this country should participate in the Pan American Olympic games scheduled for Buenos Aires in 1942 as a substitute for the International Olympic games which have been cancelled out by the war.

Rams at Full Strength for Grid Test

WITH a week of stiff practice behind them, the Madison high school Rams today are in good shape for their encounter with Norwalk high at 8 p. m. Friday under the lights at the Madison field.

* * *

Tomorrow night's tilt will be the sixth of the season for the Rams, who have yet to register their first win.

The Rams are pointing to the Norwalk game as the end of their losing streak, and according to Coach Al Fendrick the squad is in good physical condition for the contest.

Madison this year has already bowed to Wooster, New London, Dennison, Orrville and Tiffin Jesse Orr Order.

* * *

* * *

Woodville school will play a Mansfield as a preliminary to the Madison-Norwalk tilt at 6:3 p. m. This is a Madison township junior high school league game.

State Has More Than Team; There's Helen Jenkins, 1940 Annie Oakley

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS (AP)—All this controversy about Ohio State university's football team, following the more or less unexpected loss to Northwestern's Wildcats last Saturday, is just a tempest in a teapot.

* * *

* * *

She's Miss Helen Jenkins of Columbus, a co-ed Theta queen of [illegible] with blue eyes, blonde hair and a [illegible] She wants to [illegible] the varsity rifle team, and to do despite the fact she's [illegible] rifle marksmen in the [illegible] but the powers-that-be [illegible] down thumbs on [illegible]

[illegible] of the rifle team, [illegible] of Sgt. Fred T. [illegible] of the squad, [illegible] boys and girls [illegible] and prate on a Theta, for also possessing a determined attitude, is definitely in the wrong, according to the university's R. M. O. C. (big men on campus) who would like to have a bit of straight-shooting pulchritude on the varsity firing line.

Today Miss Jenkins took matters into her own pretty hands. She skipped all over the campus accidentally skipping a few classes en route to place her case before members of the board of athletic control.

The National Rifle association's records books show that Miss Jenkins is the ninth-ranking feminine crackshot in the country, and that until old age overtook her a year ago she was the Ohio junior queen, leaving out all the boy and girl sharpshooters of the Buckeye realm.

* * *

The Columbus miss hasn't been informed of the board's decision on her request for a spot on the team, but she's made up her mind on what she'll do if it's adverse.

* * *

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK—(UP)—Tucked away in a corner of Jack and Charlie's "21," surrounded by such descendants of the grey heroes of Shiloh and Chickamauga as Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Herbert Bayard Swope, and Oscar Levant, I found Ed Danforth, advance cavalry patrol for the Georgia Bulldogs who play Columbia here on Saturday.

* * *

Danforth, who is sports editor of the Atlanta Journal, was eating a fare that would make his cook at home tear up her bandanna and stuff it in the wood range. Gumbo had given way to vichysoisse. Catfish had yielded to fresh salmon steak. Black eyed peas had bowed to le petit pois bonne femme, and turnip greens were forced to default to artichokes hollandaise.

* * *

Much as it pained me to see Danforth backslide from good cooking, I sat down and questioned him on southern football, a subject on which he is as well informed as any man in the country.

Here are a few of the things he told me: There are more good teams south of the Ohio river than ever before, and that's no idle statement. . . . There's Tennessee, for one, completely recovered from its Rose Bowl shock and equipped with a new offensive shift. . . . Bob Foxx, tailback, is bigger and better than Cafego ever was.

But Tennessee would only be even money against Harry Mehre's Mississippi Rebels, whose backfield packs the dynamite boys, Hovious and Hapes. . . . You can go on from there. . . . Mississippi may be no better than Mississippi State, Auburn or Kentucky.

New York will see the fastest lot of sophomore backs in the country when Georgia tees off with Columbia at Baker Field. . . . If you want to give 2 to 1 there are Georgians arriving with the Bulldogs tomorrow who will bet you that one of the Georgia speed merchants, a soph named Lamar Davis, will run back a Columbia punt for a touchdown.

* * *

* * *

In conclusion, here's a guess at the southern teams that will be chosen for the southern bowl games: The winner of the Tennessee-Alabama tilt will get the Orange Bowl nod, and Ole Miss will go to New Orleans for the Sugar Bowl.

REVAMPED BACKFIELD

Bantamweights Tackle Strong Canton Club.

The Eagles lodge bantamweight football team will make its second home appearance of the season Sunday in a benefit game to be played at the Richland county fairground. For this tilt the Bantams will meet the Canton Bantams for the second time this season. The Eagles team won a 6 to 0 decision over the Canton team earlier this fall. Sunday's contest is being played as a benefit for Krupp, star lineman of the team who suffered a broken ankle in the Akron game a few weeks ago, according to D. E. Campbell, team business manager.

FARLEY STILL TRYING TO ACQUIRE N. Y. YANKEES

NEW YORK—(NS)—The lack of ready foldin' money has for the time being put a crimp into Jim Farley's plans to acquire the New York Yankees, according to Jeremiah T. Mahoney, his lawyer.

It was understood a potential financial backer withdrew at the last hour and that Farley's syndicate is seeking another to make up the balance of the $2,000,000 which it is estimated will be needed to swing the deal. Altogether, the Yanks will cost about $4,000,000, it has been estimated, and half cash is needed for a buy.

CASE WORKS ON PASSES FOR GAME WITH CARROLL

CLEVELAND—(NS)—Hoping to avenge shutouts suffered in the last two years, the gridders of Case School of Applied Science put the finishing touches of a passing game on ton of a fine rushing attack today in preparation for their game with John Carroll tomorrow night.

INVADES SOUTH BEND

PITTSBURGH — (NS) — Carnegie Tech's battered football squad leaves tonight for South Bend, Ind., for the 18th annual setto with Notre Dame. The Tartans will go to Niles, Mich., first and stay there until shortly before game time.

CORNELL HOPES UP

ITHACA, N. Y.—(NS)—The return of Tailback Harold McCullough and Left Tackle Fred West to the Cornell practice lineup raised Cornell's hopes against Syracuse Saturday. No starting lineup changes were in sight unless McCullough is not adjudged okay to play Saturday.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Purdue Fans Hear Maag Entered Game Illegally In Buckeye Contest.

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—(AP)—Whether Ohio State's football team legally defeated Purdue a week ago last Saturday became the question of the hour today on the Purdue campus.

* * *

Gordon Graham, sports editor of the Lafayete Journal & Courier, precipitated the turmoil when he reported in his column that motion pictures of Ohio State's 17-14 triumph over Purdue showed that Charley Maag, who came in to kick the game-winning field goal in the last 19 seconds of the game, was an ineligible player when he re-entered the contest.

* * *

The story, as related by Graham, was that Maag was taken out of the game soon after the second quarter started and then was sent back in just before the end of that period.

The rules provide that a player may not return to the game in the same quarter in which he is withdrawn; if he does so, he shall be suspended from the game and his team penalized 15 yards.

Maag went into the game in the second quarter just before Ohio State scored the touchdown which gave the Buckeyes a 14-0 lead at the half. Purdue rallied in the last half to tie the score and then Maag came back in with 19 seconds to play and booted the field goal.

The claim here is that Maag became ineligible for further play when he re-entered the game in the second quarter and that he never should have been allowed to return to the field in the fourth period to try for the field goal.

What the final score would have been had Maag been ruled ineligible in the second period was another topic or argument at Purdue.

When the big Buckeye guard made his second quarter entrance there were only 41 seconds to go and Ohio State was on Purdue's three-yard line. The Bucks scored in those closing seconds, but if Maag was ineligible his team would have been set back to the 18-yard line.

* * *

One authoritative source at Purdue said that the pictures definitely show Maag going into the game in the second quarter after having been taken out in the same period. This person asserted, however, that "nothing can be done about it now."

* * *

Under the rules, the umpire is charged with the responsibility of determining the legality of substitutions. W. D. Knight of Dartmouth umpired the game.

SCHMIDT ADMITS IT

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Associates of Coach Francis Schmidt of Ohio State university said today he admitted Charley Maag played illegally in the game with Purdue, that he took full responsibility for the mistake, and had apologized publicly a week ago.

Carver Strings Along With Grid Favorites

LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK —(NS)— The biggest possible upsets that could occur in major football games on Saturday would be for Notre Dame, Cornell and Boston college to lose. Therefore, we will start this week's selections in this fashion:

* * *

Notre Dame to beat Carnegie Tech, Cornell to run over Syracuse and Boston college to vige Idaho its lumps.

We will go even a little farther on those three and forecast that, as usual, the Notre Dame first team won't be in the game long enough for Piepul, Saggau, Hargrave and Juzwik to break a good sweat, that Cornell will remain unscored upon and that Idaho will emerge from its clash at Boston still without a touchdown all year.

Having stuck our neck out on those just far enough to show a fluctuating adam's apple, we now offer these tid-bits:

EAST

Pittsburgh over Fordham, Georgia over Columbia, Penn over Princeton, Duke over Colgate, Harvard over Army, Dartmouth over Yale, Navy over Drake, Penn State over Lehigh, Holy Cross over New York university, Brown over Tufts, and in game tomorrow night Georgetown to beat V. P. I., Detroit over Manhattan, Michigan State over Temple.

Of the foregoing, the outstanding pick against prevailing opinion is Pittsburgh over Fordham, but we still think Crackem & Co., will be able to take the Rams of Fordham in a rough, tough, close ball game.

MID-WEST

Minnesota over Ohio State, Michigan over Illinois, Northwestern over Wisconsin, Indiana over Iowa, Nebraska over Kansas, Missouri over Iowa State, and Kansas State over Oklahoma.

Of these, Minnesota and Ohio State are a virtual toss-up and the latter may be favored by the majority. Indiana hasn't won a game yet and any may be trapped again, while the Michigan-Illinois encounter will bring back memories of last season's greatest upset that Illinois win over the Michiganders.

SOUTH

Georgia Tech over Vanderbilt, Mississippi over Duquesne, Kentucky over George Washington, North Carolina State over North Carolina, Rice over Tulane, Maryland over Florida, Louisiana State over Mercer, Mississippi State over Howard, and a three-star special - Alabama over Tennessee.

In the latter game Tennessee will be the top-heavy favorite, but Alabama has a great chance to come through with its 210-pound line and a big fast backfield. This will be Alabama's first test after three games with warmup foes, while Tennessee sharpened up for the game by beating Duke two weeks ago, then taking a breather.

* * *

SOUTHWEST

Texas A. and M. over Texas Christian, Southern Methodist over Auburn, Baylor over Villanova, Texas over Arkansas and Texas Tech over Brigham Young.

* * *

PACIFIC COAST

Stanford over Washington State, California over U. C. L. A., Washington over Oregon State, Southern California over Oregon St. Mary's over Loyola.

Any of the coast games could go counter to the pick without being regarded as much of an upset.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN SECTION

MAKES FIRST STRING

Feller Expects "Good Raise"

Says He Doesn't Know How Much It Will Be.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Bob Feller, in Cleveland for a few hours to register for military service yesterday, expects a "good raise" in salary for 1941 but he has decided to leave contract discussions go until the year is done.

* * *

"I'm going to do a lot of hunting and forget about baseball as much as possible," said baseball's leading pitcher after he had registered.

* * *

"Naturally I expect a raise and you'll have to guess what the figure will be. I got more than a $5,000 raise last year."

* * *

Feller has refused several magazine offers to tell his side of the Vitt rebellion, fearing that he might be misunderstood. He also turned down several offers in Iowa to do sports broadcasts.

* * *

"I'm on the move so much I couldn't take a job like that. Besides, I have a lot of hunting to do. I played one game of exhibition baseball during a homecoming celebration for me in Van Meter. That was my last for the year," he explained.

Cleveland Rams Seek to Break Losing Streak Against Chicago

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Rams return to hard work and plenty of it this week as they begin grim preparations for their battle with the Chicago Cardinals, following Sunday's 31 to 14 defeat at the hands of the Champion Green Bay packers. Statistics of the Packer game shows an almost even battle, but the aerial attack of Green Bay proved to be a little too much for the Rams.

This was the third successive defeat for the Rams and they will endeavor to bounce back into the win column this coming Sunday when they take on the Cards in Cleveland's lakefront stadium. The Clevelanders piled up 16 first downs to the Packer's 18 and gained 77 yards rushing to Green Bay's 86.

Both teams moved up and down the field piling up yardage during the first quarter and Green Bay first broke the ice with a 30 yard field goal by Fullback Clark Hinkle. Another attempted field goal by the Packers was no good, this one from the 24, and the Rams tried one from the 18 that failed.

The Cardinals, the team that plays the Rams Sunday, have run a course parallel to that of the local professionals. Like the Rams, the Cards have lost tight ball games and have a record of one victory against three losses. The Chicago Club has played two more league games than the Rams, both resulting in ties. Sunday the Cardinals extended the Washington Redskins to the limit as they fell one touchdown short in their bid to give the powerful easterners their first loss.

Such stars as Lloyd Madden, leading college scorer last year, Mad Marshall Goldberg, former All-American at Pitt, and a host of others come to town with the Cardinals. Kickoff time is set for 2:30 p. m. Sunday.

Analyst Predicts Sweeping Willkie Vote

FORETOLD FDR 1936 ELECTION 100 PER CENT

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Emil Hurja, ace political analyst who "called the turn" 100 per cent right in 1936, predicted in an interview today that Wendell L. Willkie will win from 25 to 28 states in November and be elected president by a sweeping majority.

"Willkie on the basis of the present trend will win by from 1,500,000 to 3,000,000 votes," said Hurja. "If the current trend continues at its present rate of acceleration, Willkie has an opportunity of winning by more than 4,000,000 votes."

Hurja, who in the last two presidential campaigns was statistician for the Democratic national committee under the regime of James A. Farley, jumped into the headlines in 1936 as America's No. 1 political analyst with his uncanny forecast that President Roosevelt would carry 46 states and lose only Maine and Vermont.

Farley took Hurja's figures four years ago and won a pool on the election result participated in by a large group of New York and Washington newspaper correspondents.

Reached over long distance telephone today at Chicago, Hurja told International News Service that a sharp trend away from Roosevelt set in in the big cities throughout the country. This trend started three weeks ago, and "is quite marked now."

Hurja pointed out that many things can happen between now and Nov. 5. But he was basing his prediction of Willkie victory on the situation as it exists today and also on a poll which his weekly, "The Pathfinder," took ten days ago.

(A year ago Hurja, who was once a Texas newspaper publisher, and Ben Smith, the famous Wall Street speculator, purchased "The Pathfinder," which sells more than 1,000,000 copies a week in rural communities.)

Hurja said he feels his 1940 poll is just as accurate as the one in 1936 on which he based his statement that the Republicans would carry only two states.

"I say just as confidently now that Willkie will be swept into office," he declared. "I estimate he will win 25 to 28 states."

"How about New York state?" he was asked.

"Safely for Willkie," replied Hurja.

"How about California?"

"Doubtful in my poll at this time."

The fact that Senator Hiram Johnson of California is planning to come out for Willkie in a speech tomorrow night would not induce Hurja to change his California estimate at this time. He said he deals only in present trends, not guesses.

"How about Illinois?" he was asked.

"Definitely Republican."

"Why is New York so 'emphatic?"

"Because of the more positive up-state vote for Willkie than four years ago," he answered.

Hurja went on to say that the recent Willkie gains in the big cities of the country are of great significance. He pointed out that in 1936 the cities went Democratic in states where the rural vote went Republican. This was true in cities such as New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Chicago.

"The city strongholds for Democracy are fading," Hurja remarked.

Hurja said his poll reveals that the two big issues in the minds of the American people are (1) the war trend and (2) the third term.

He said that his poll revealed that of the people who have not made up their minds as to how they will vote 67 to 69 per cent of them are against the third term.

"The situation today," Hurja summed up, "is subject to fluctuations. Ten days from now I will make another statement on the election and it will be definite."

POWER SURVEY FUND ORDERED BY PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Allocates Million Dollars For Study of St. Lawrence Plan.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt informed congress today that he had allocated $1,000,000 for preliminary surveys looking to development of additional power for defense at the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence river.

The money came from a $2,000,000 defense fund which congress placed at the president's discretion and it was assigned to the federal power commission and the army engineers corps for core borings, test pits, soil analyses, and other preliminary work to be undertaken immediately.

"The preliminary investigation which I have authorized involves no actual construction or commitment to construct," the president said in his message and "in taking this means of advising congress of the surveys I am having made, I wish to make it clear that congress will be kept advised of such further steps as may be necessary."

Development of additional power on the St. Lawrence was a high point of controversy five or six years ago when the senate rejected a treaty with Canada on the subject that would have provided for making the St. Lawrence an ocean-going navigable stream from the Atlantic to the Great Lakes and for producing additional hydro-electric power to be equally divided between the United States and Canada.

Emphasis has been placed recently on the power phase of the project alone, Mr. Roosevelt declaring that more power was needed in both countries for defense purposes.

The president also issued today an executive order creating the St. Lawrence advisory committee to advise him, he said, in "planning the work and to cooperate with appropriate agencies of the Canadian government."

To its membership he named Leland Olds, chairman of the federal power commission, as chairman; A. A. Berle, assistant secretary of state; Brig. Gen. Thomas M. Robins, army engineer corps, and Gerald V. Cruise, representative of the trustees of the New York power authority.

The president told congress that surveys of the power commission and the national power policy committee had convinced him that development of the International Rapids section should be undertaken quickly "as a part of adequate provision to meet the continuing power requirements of the the defense program in certain essential centers of war material production in the northeastern states."

GIVES REPLY TO FLYNN'S BLAST

N. Y. Editor Says Dem Chief Owes Newspapers Apology For 'Dictatorship' Charge.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The Republican state committee made public today a telegram to Edward J. Flynn from Tom R. Hutton, Binghampton, N. Y., editor, replying to the Democratic national chairman's charge that newspapers are under a "financial dictatorship of their advertisers."

"You owe an apology to honest newspapers and newspapermen all over the country," the telegram said, "for falling into an Ickes tantrum of uninformed generalities about the good faith of newspapermen who have been consistently fair through the years and on whom no advertiser pressure could be exerted under any circumstances."

Flynn at a press conference yesterday challenged newspapers to "tell why they feed their readers in the news columns wholesale doses of partisan propaganda, instead of adhering to the independence they so often want, and give their readers an even break on the actual news of the day?"

Hutton said his paper, the Binghampton Press, supported President Roosevelt in 1932 and is supporting Wendell Willkie this year.

MILD WEATHER KEEPS HUNTERS FROM GOOD DUCK HUNTING DAY

Mild Fall weather was blamed by state conservation officials today for a relatively poor supply of ducks in the Richland county area and throughout Ohio on the opening day of the duck season yesterday.

County Game Protector C. I. Kimmel stated today that only 24 ducks were bagged by 53 hunters at Charles Mill dam yesterday.

Ducks were reported scarce along Lake Erie but somewhat more numerous on the inland lakes of the state, especially on the newly opened reservoirs of the Muskingum watershed conservancy district, covering 60,000 acres of water.

Conservation agents reported that 150 hunters in the entire Muskingum area bagged about 225 ducks. Two thousand ducks were estimated on these lakes, with the supply most plentiful on Tappan and Senecaville reservoirs.

At Indian lake, 2500 hunters were out. Those checked by enforcement officers averaged 3.17 ducks and coots each, with coots outnumbering ducks 6 to 1.

On Kiser lake, recently open in Champaign county, 150 hunters obtained 75 coot and 50 mallard ducks.

Colder weather is expected to bring a big influx of game when the main flights of ducks move southward. The season continues through Dec. 14.

FIRM REVEALS DRAFT POLICY

Tappan Stove Employes To Get Month's Pay, Won't Lose Positions.

Employes of the Tappan Stove company who are conscripted or volunteer their services in military land or naval forces for one year will not lose their jobs, their seniority nor their employes benefits, according to a policy announced by the company today.

Employes who are taken for selective service or for national guard training, or retired military personnel called upon for service, will be given a year's leave of absence, 40 days in which to make the necessary changes in their personal lives. This also includes those who voluntarily enlist for a year.

Salaried employes with six months' continuous service with the company will receive a month's pay, while hourly employes with the same period of service with the company will be paid a month's wage based on their normal earning capacity.

Men will be returned to their jobs in "positions of like seniority status and pay" unless the employers' circumstances have so changed that this is impossible; group insurance will be kept up by the company on condition the employe pay his share, and he will have his usual vacation benefits during the year, company officials announced.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The German radio broadcast today a Chungking dispatch saying that Japanese bombing planes attacked the central Chinese government capital this afternoon the second attack within 24 hours.

NEW AIR RAID DEFENSE PLAN

Nazis Say Blinding Searchlight Halts British Fliers.

BERLIN—(AP)—The Germans claimed a new defensive air raid weapon today—a super searchlight which would blind British night fliers and make them fly directly into its rays, where they could be easy marks for anti-aircraft guns.

DNB, official German news agency, said the weapon was used successfully last night against a British bomber on the Dutch coast. The bomber, the agency said, was brought down in flames.

The agency said that in the intense glare of the searchlight the British pilot acted like "a blinded animal," flew directly at the German defense position and was hit several times.

DEMS' CARAVAN TO HIGHLIGHT POLITICAL DRIVE

A Young Democratic club caravan to Mt. Vernon highlighted the political program today while Richland county Republicans planned two meetings for tomorrow night.

More than 50 automobiles from Mansfield and Ashland will leave the Richland county courthouse at 6:30 p. m. for a 17th district rally at Mt. Vernon at which Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., son of the president, will be the principal speaker.

The meeting, sponsored by the Young Democrats of the 17th congressional district, will be in charge of two Mansfielders, Miss Mary K. Newcomer, president of the Richland County Young Democrats, and John Correll, state chairman of the organization.

The caravan plans to stop in Bellville where short talks will be made by county candidates. It is expected that additional cars will join the caravan there.

Tomorrow afternoon a delegation of Democratic women will go to Ashland to attend a tea given in honor of Mrs. Martin L. Davey, wife of the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, at the Ashland Country club.

Shelby Democrats will rally at the First Lutheran church in Shelby at 8 p. m. to hear Louis Bromfield, Mansfield author, and Stephen Young, of Cleveland, candidate for U. S. senator. The meeting will be under the auspices of the Shelby Democratic women. Atty. Frank Long will be chairman.

Meanwhile, Republicans will sponsor community rallies in Mifflin and Weller and Franklin townships tomorrow evening.

One meeting will be held at the Mifflin community house and the other at the Union rural school. County candidates will speak at both rallies.

RELIEF LOAD DOWN, COSTS SHOW INCREASE

Although a marked decrease was shown in Richland county's relief load during September, cost of providing relief for indigents increased $337, Relief Director J. Verne Finney reported today.

Major portion of the increase was due, Finney said, to increased medical services and administrative costs, both of which showed substantial increases over August.

A case load of 416 was reported last month, the cost of relief totaling $9,154 as compared to $8,817 spent in August to provide for 484 cases.

Of the total cost, $3,978 was spent in Mansfield and $1,905 in other parts of the county, exclusive of Shelby. In addition a total of $1,400 was expended for medical care, $703 in the county and $697 in Mansfield.

Administrative and non-administrative costs, which include salaries, rent and purchase of materials and supplies increased $130, a total of $1,754 being spent for this item last month as against $1,624 in August.

It was reported that during September, 127 persons were assigned to WPA projects boosting the number of persons employed by the government agency in the county to 600. There are 230 awaiting assignments.

The WPA sewing project, sponsored by the county, manufactured 2,467 men's, women's and children's garments during the period and turned them over to relief officials for distribution. Cost of production was $561.

During the month, approximately 10 tons of surplus foods including flour, raisins, prunes, cereal, eggs, beans, ham, rice and bacon were distributed to relief clients.

Answer: When he's a Smith T.

And that's no riddle, but actually the sentiment that moved one Smith a few generation back to place a letter on the end of his name so the postmaster wouldn't be getting him mixed up with a similarly christened Smith.

Today no one remembers why the original Smith rebel chose the letter "T," but there is a whole family of Smith T's carrying on in this Alabama town.

F. B. Smith T, Sr., is a storekeeper here. He has a son, F. B. Smith T, Jr., recently married, and two daughters, Misses Cordelia and Martha Smith T.

POOR WAY TO SHOOT A HEN

Buckshot Ricochet From Cement Striking Boy's Brother.

COLUMBUS, Kas.—There are lots of ways to kill a hen—but shooting the bird on a cement walk is not recommended.

War Under Water

A mine explodes with tremendous force, as shown by comparison of the column of water sent up with the ships at right. The German propaganda bureau did not reveal where or why the blast took place, but presumably the ships are mine-sweepers clearing the waters of northwestern Europe.

LENSMEN READY

Photographers Prepared For Service In Defense.

CHICAGO —(INS)— The United States Army will not have to worry about training at least one important classification of men for national defense.

Albert R. Buehman of Tucson, Ariz., president of the Photographers' Association of America, said that the nation's 20,000 commercial protographers are ready for instant service.

"Photography plays a role of ever-increasing importance in military operations of all kinds," he said. "A trained force of photographers that can be called to service at a moment's notice is invaluable."

Buehman said that the commercial photographers are specialized craftsmen who would fit into the military scheme without further training.

Ohio Motorists Need the Safety and Economy of CONCRETE ROADS

"Boy, what a difference!" is the way many motorists feel when they come to one of Ohio's safe, smooth-riding concrete roads. There's no pavement to compare with concrete's continuously satisfactory service.

And what a difference, too, in the real cost—in favor of concrete! Thrifty in upkeep, long lasting, with no need for frequent costly reconstruction, concrete is the real "low cost road" for Ohio—as proved by many hundreds of miles of pavement designed for light, intermediate or heavy traffic.

A Concrete Road to Fit the Load

There is an economical concrete pavement design for your roads, whether lesser travelled secondaries or busiest arterial routes. Ask your state, county and city officials for concrete.

● This fine concrete road invites you! U. S. 20 near Woodville, Ohio.

TIRED, NERVOUS PEOPLE MAY HAVE SIMPLE ANEMIA

Simple Anemia (deficient quality of the blood) develops so gradually, in many people, that their blood is greatly impaired before they realize what is the matter.

Without enough hemoglobin to carry a plentiful supply of oxygen and other essential materials, your blood slowly starves your body into an apathetic state. The physical resistance of such a body is lowered, making us more susceptible to disease.

Fortunately, there is a simple way to fight simple Anemia—with Dr. Williams Pink Pills. They contain iron which the hemoglobin in your red blood cells must have to carry vital, life-saving oxygen and other essentials from your lungs to every part of your body.

If you look pale, always feel tired, are easily upset and seem generally run-down, try Dr. Williams Pink Pills. Don't let simple Anemia get a stranglehold on you. But be sure you get the genuine Dr. Williams Pink Pills—60c size. 40c at Muir's.
